3 DEAD, 3 DYING AS GANG'S GUNS FLAME IN FEUD

Submachine Gun Rakes Hotel Dining-Room in Killers' Vengeance.

WOMAN ONE OF TRIO MORTALLY WOUNDED

Reprisal for St. Valentine Day Massacre Is Seen by Police.

VICTIMS KNOWN AS TERRY DRUGGAN MEN

Three Others Are Ambushed and Wounded Earlier in Night.

Chicago, June 1 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The lives of three gangsters known as followers of Terry Druggan, overlord of the liquor racket in the turbulent "valley" north of Chicago, were snuffed out shortly after midnight this morning by a stream of slugs from a submachine gun thrust without warning through a window of the Manning Hotel, on Pistakee Lake, near Fox Lake, 40 miles from here. The party was in the dining room drinking.

Two other members of the party, one a woman, received wounds in the same volley which are expected to prove fatal. At least one, and possibly two other men seated at the same table escaped with slight wounds.

The murders are believed to have been committed in reprisal for the St. Valentine's Day, 1929, massacre in Chicago, in which seven members of the George (Bugs) Moran gang were lined up against a wall in a North Side garage and shot down in cold blood.

Three Others Ambushed.

An hour after the Fox Lake killing three other notorious members of the Chicago badlands were ambushed on a North Side street, receiving wounds that may prove fatal.

Although separated by 40 miles, the two murderous assaults are believed to have been the opening ones in a war of extermination between rival gangs here.

Coupled with six more gang murders within the past 30 days, the Fox Lake massacre is regarded by Chief of Police Stege as proof that all gang armistices or truces are at and end in Chicago.

The three men killed in the Manning Hotel are:

Mike Quirk, labor racketeer and partisan of the O'Donnell gang of west side beer distributors.

Joe Bertsche, burglar and gun man, who had just served a term in the Ohio penitentiary for mail robbery.

Sam Pellar, bootlegger affiliated with the Capone gang.

Terry Druggan's Brother Wounded.

The wounded: George Druggan, brother of the notorious Terry, who had made more than $2,000,000 in the beer racket, and Mrs. Viviene McGinnis, of Fox Lake, wife of Arthur McGinnis, Chicago lawyer. She happened to be present as a guest of George Druggan, who is said to have been attentive to her lately. She had four bullets in the abdomen, mortal wounds.

Druggan was hit three times in the body and head. He may die.

L. V. Smith, State's attorney of Lake County, and Sheriff Doolittle are pushing an investigation of the slaughter, but the usual fog and silence confronts them.

Lomis Kepla, a waiter at the hotel, said that the party, in which there were five or six men and the woman, arrived at the hotel by automobile about midnight. They entered the dining room and ordered food. Man-

15 Sailors Drown In Crash of Ships

Swedish Steamer Inger Goes Down in Collision Off British Coast.

New Haven, England, June 1 (A.P.). Fifteen lives were believed lost early today in the sinking of the Swedish steamer Inger after collision with the Italian motorship Literno in the English Channel near Beachy Head. Three men were rescued out of a personnel of eighteen.

Two members of the Inger's crew were picked up by the Literno. A lifeboat rescued another sailor from an overturned boat, and another lifeboat pickedup a sailor's body.

The collision occurred in a dense fog shortly after midnight. The Inger was bound from Swansea to Sweden with a cargo of coal. The Literno, a tanker, outward bound from Copenhagen, was damaged in the bow, but proceeded to Dover without assistance. Several steamers' lifeboats remained on the spot to hunt for the missing men.

PREMIER FIRM

ANDRE TARDIEU.

FRANCE RULES OWN FATE, SAYS TARDIEU

Republic Neither Fears Nor Boasts, Premier Asserts in Reply to Italy.

REVEALS DEFENSE STEPS

Dijon, France, June 1 (A.P.).—In the French government's political keynote speech today, Premier Andre Tardieu told 1,500 leaders from all branches of life that France is strong, and intends to remain mistress of her own destiny, needing neither to fear nor to boast.

The premier's address was awaited by all France, and by many other countries, because it follows closely on speeches by Premier Mussolini of Italy, which have been characterized in the French press as "bellicose" and as directed mainly against France.

M. Tardieu made no specific mention of Italy nor of Mussolini, but confined himself to a declaration of calm confidence in French democratic institutions, and French national strength, both physical and moral. He recalled Foreign Minister Briand's long efforts to achieve peace.

He added, however, that although "the government is passionately interested in this work, it has neglected nothing which would enable France to participate actively by vigilantly safeguarding her security."

"The international organization of peace is effective only if it associates strong peoples capable of contributing as much to the common defense as formerly they could to their own," the premier continued. "At the London conference, France followed a policy of firmness, joining in all measures of general interest which were not of a nature to reduce tonnage necessary for her needs nor to increase the arithmetical injustice of rules of limitation adopted at Washington in 1922."

M. Tardieu recalled how opposition groups in France predicted that sacrifices would be made at London and at The Hague Conference, that the reparations loan would not be commercialized and that the Rhineland would be prematurely evacuated.

"It is the contrary that has happened," he asserted. "France today is in a position which frees her both from the need to fear or to boast."

The audience, apparently interpreting this as an allusion to Mussolini, applauded long and loudly. M. Tardieu then commented on Bismarck's policy and that of his successors, "out of which excesses came the German defeat of 1918."

Outlining France's policy for national defense, he said it included an

GRAF ZEPPELIN SEEN IN HANGAR BY HUGE CROWD

More Than 125,000 Go Through Building at Lakehurst.

WORK OF REFUELING AIRCRAFT CONTINUES

Only Hydrogen Remains to Be Placed Upon Giant of Skies.

NAVY SYSTEM AVERTS JAM OF BIG TRAFFIC

Two Women in Throng Hurt; Return Voyage Starts at 10 o'Clock Tonight.

Naval Air Station, Lakehurst, N. J., June 1 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—One of the largest crowds that ever came to these parts flocked here from all directions today, from early morning until sundown, to get a close-up view of the Graf Zeppelin as she stood in the hangar waiting for 10 o'clock tomorrow night, the zero hour set by her skipped, Dr. Hugo Eckener, for her departure for the home port in Friedrichshafen, Germany, via Seville, Spain.

Lieut. George F. Watson, naval press liason officer, estimated that about 12,000 had inspected the huge dirigible, by 5 o'clock this afternoon and that about 25,000 were still standing at that time in long lines outside waiting to get past the sentries at the doors. A more conservative estimate places the crowd at somewhere between 75,000 and 100,000.

Hundreds Arrive Early.

The hangar did not open for visitors until 8 o'clock this morning, hundreds came much earlier, scores of them waiting for hours in their automobiles. The earliest to arrive in their machines were clocked at 3:30 this morning. They were soon joined by many other Zeppelin enthusiasts.

As the day progressed, traffic within a radius of five miles from the hangar slowed up and by 3 o'clock in the afternoon the long, almost endless line of cars could be observed barely crawling at snail's pace in the narrow road. While the majority of cars bore New Jersey plates, there was a large representation from Pennsylvania, New York and Maryland.

Navy authorities, having learned their lesson two years ago at the first arrival of the Graf, which resulted in a serious traffic snarl, had worked out a method of handling traffic which prevented a recurrence of the conditions at that time. Cars were made to park in long lines several hundred yards from the hangar and their occupants had to walk the rest of the distance in orderly files.

Pass Along Platform.

They entered the hangar by one door, passed along the observation platform on a level with cabin windows of the dirigible and from there went outside the ropes on their way out. Before entering each visitor was made to deposit his matches and his cameras and there was many a groan of disappointment on the part of many a flapper who had come all prepared to take snapshots of herself with the Graf Zeppelin as a background.

As the doors closed at 8 o'clock there was some confusion outside as several thousand cars started to wind their way homeward but while progress was slow no serious jam occurred.

Despite the crowds, work of refueling the Graf with lifting and fuel gas went on and the task was practically completed by noon. Beginning at 11 o'clock yesterday morning

Hoover Greets Prince And Awaits Dr. Olaya

Spaniard Delivers Letter Fro mKing; Columbian To Be Welcomed

President Hoover last night received at the White House the greetings of King Alfonso of Spain, which were conveyed to him by Prince Don Alfonso of Orleans, the King's cousin, who arrived in this country as a passenger on the Graf Zeppelin.

Today the President will receive another foreign dignitary, Dr. Enrique Olaya, President-elect of Colombia, who will arrive at the Union Station this afternoon from New York.

The call of Prince Alfonso was brief. Spanish Ambassador Don Alejandro Padilla y Bell accompanied him to the White House.

Vice President Curtis was a guest at a luncheon given yesterday by the Spanish Ambassador. Prince Alfonso will leave at 2 o'clock today for Lakehurst, N. J., where he will board the Graf Zeppelin for the return trip to Europe.

From a microphone set up in the Spanish Embassy, the royal passenger of the Graf Zeppelin broadcast a description of the trip. He expressed the thought that the route of the old sailing ships, from Europe to South America to North America, which was determined by trade winds, is the most likely route for dirigibles.

The prince had nothing but praise for Commander Hugo Eckener, of the Graf, Spain, he said, is destined to become the center of dirigible transportation because of its geographical location, away from mountains and because of its excellent weather conditions.

President-elect Alaya will arrive at the Union Station about 3 o'clock. He will be greeted by representatives of the State Department, and will be escorted by the Army Band and a troop of cavalry. White House emissaries and diplomats of foreign nations will be among the welcoming groups.

Dr. Olaya will be escorted to the White House, where he will be received in the blue room by the President. President Hoover will return the visit at the Colombian Legation. Dr. Olaya will be guest at a state dinner tonight at the White House.

PRESIDENT RETURNS AFTER MOTOR JAUNT

Pennsylvania Folk Acclaim Hoover as Car Makes Way Back to Capital.

PAYS CHURCH SURPRISE

(Associated Press.)

Riding nearly 300 miles in an automobile, President Hoover returned to the White House late yesterday from the lodge of Jay Cooke, of Philadelphia, in the mountains of Pennsylvania, and after a quick change of costume received informally the Infante Alfonso, cousin of the King of Spain.

Much of the long journey across Pennsylvania and Maryland, which brought to a close a week-end vacation begun immediately after the Chief Executive completed his Memorial Day address at Gettysburg, was made through lanes of cheering crowds. People lined the streets of most of the smal ltowns through which the motors passed, warned of the President's coming by the shrieking of the police escort's sirens, and along the road hundreds waved their tribute as the Chief Executive sped southward. Repeatedly Mr. Hoover bowed and doffed his hat as he rode along.

The ride was interrupted only twice—once for the President to worship at a small Methodist Episcopal Church in Liverpool, Pa., and again at the home of Henry P. Fletcher, former

HOLIDAY AUTO TOLL MOUNTS TO 10 DEAD

Business in Washington

By A. C. CASE,
Vice President the Palais Royal.

For the past several years the urge in almost all lines of business has been to get volume, then still more volume.

Concentrating on this idea, and the effective salesmanship that went with that drive, led both business and the consumer into some excesses that just now seem to be in the process of being straightened out.

The financial reports of many large businesses show increased volume for 1929 with decidedly decreased net profit. Many of these losses were brought about by speculative tactics in management or by overrating possibilities for expansion in volume at this time in our history. A large number of the establishments that were content with moderate constructive growth have shown excellent profits for the past year. After all, there is a limit to what the country can absorb and pay for. A lull in activity in lines that have been overdone does not mean that things in general are weak.

The vast volume of sales in automobiles, radios and similar merchandise has had a noticeable and Nation-wide influence in decreasing the sales of furniture and house furnishings. There are some reports that many automobile producers are now working on a part time basis. While that may mean unemployment in automobile producing centers, that loss may be made up in lines that have been neglected heretofore.

We see no pent-up demand for merchandise, but as our sales for 1930 exceed the sales for the same period in 1929 we do not believe that dull times are at hand. The public seems to have purchasing power if offered the things that it wants.

BISHOP CANNON HITS PROPRIETY OF SENATE QUIZ

Prelate Defends Failure to Make Campaign Funds Report.

QUOTES SENATOR ON LIMITS OF INQUIRY

Asks Why Activities in Virginia Alone Are Questioned.

LAW AND PRECEDENT EXAMINED BY CLERIC

Methodist Leader to Face Caraway Lobby Group Tomorrow.

(Associated Press.)

Bishop James Cannon, jr., of Methodist Episcopal Church South, in a statement yesterday defended his failure to report the 1928 campaign expenditures of the Virginia anti-Smith Democrats and questioned the propriety of the Senate lobby committee's inquiry into those expenditures.

Bishop Cannon quoted from the record of the committee hearings a statement by Chairman Caraway to Representative Tinkham (Republican), Massachusetts, that the lobby committee was "not empowered to inquire into political expenditures; it is only those expenditures and activities that have to do with the influencing of legislation or executive action that we are inquiring into, and not political."

"In view of this correct definition of the limitations of the lobbying committee," said Bishop Cannon, "by the chairman himself, I was surprised when I learned that Senator Caraway was making inquiries concerning the treasurer of the Virginia anti-Smith Democrats in the 'political' (not lobbying) campaign of 1928."

Contributor Gave Testimony.

The Virginia anti-Smith expenditures figured in testimony given the committee by E. C. Jameson, of New York, a contributor. After Mr. Jameson testified Bishop Cannon sent from Dallas, Tex., whre he was attending the conference of his church, a telegram to Senator Caraway saying he had handled the funds personally, but had made no report on the Democrats disbursements, "as none was required by law."

Senator Caraway, the bishop recalled, commenting on the telegram, said it was "difficult to interpret," in the light of previous testimony.

Bishop Cannon, who tomorrow is to appear before the committee for questioning, said he had, immediately upon returning to Washington from Dallas, made an examination of the Federal corrupt practices act to verify the statement that a committee operating in only one State was not required to report.

Finds Reports Not Customary.

"Not only is such a report not required," he said, "but upon a thorough examination of all the reports in the offices of the Clerk of the House of Representatives, I found that it has never been customary for State committees—Democratic, Republican or otherwise—to make such reports."

He found, however, that upon written request of Chairman Steiwer, of the 1928 Senate campaign funds committee, State party committees had filed statements of receipts and disbursements during the presidential campaign.

"No such request from Senator Steiwer came to me," he said, "but, had such request been received, I would have sent to him the same statement I wired to Mr. E. C. Jameson; namely,

Seven Killed, 154 Injured In Fresh Indian Outbreaks

Shooting of Mother and Two Children Moves Mob to Violence at Peshawar as 150 Volunteers Receive Injuries in Salt Raid.

Peshawar, India, June 1 (A.P.).—Seven persons weer reported killed and nine wounded yesterday when police fired on a mob that had formed after the accidental shooting of a mother and her two children. Disorder ceased after the shooting, but business throughout the city suspended.

The shooting of the mother and children was caused by the accidental discharge of a rifle by a lance corporal on duty at the Kabuli Gate, an official statement said. The children were killed instantly, while the mother, wife of Sirdar Ganga Singh, supervisor of the Military Farm, was taken to the hospital.

An excited crowd assembled immediately after the shooting and the police and troops asserted they were compelled to fire in self-defense. The bodies of those killed in the subsequent clashes were taken to nearby shops.

Bombay, June 1 (A.P.).—Fifteen thousand Indians surged through a two-mile cordon of police at the Wadala Salt Works today and left behind 150 injured. So overwhelmed were the police that they called troops to assist them, but the area was quiet tonight and the soldiers were withdrawn.

The police used their bamboo staves freely, thus accounting for the 150 casualties, but the Nationalists who were unhurt emerged with hand-

MAJ. UMBERTO MADDALENA.

ITALIAN SETS MARK AND REMAINS IN AIR

Endurance Record for Ships Not Refueled Broken by Maddalena.

RESCUER OF GEN. NOBILE

Montecello, Italy, June 1 (A.P.).—Maj. Umberto Maddalena tonight broke the world endurance record officially recognized for planes not refueling in the air, that of Johann Risticz and Hans Zimmerman, German fliers, who stayed up 85 hours and 26 minutes in 1928.

Accompanied by Capt. Cecconi, the Italian flier took off from the government field here at 4 a. m. Friday for Ostia and return, and by 10:25 o'clock tonight had flown 86 hours and 25 minutes. At midnight he was still flying and it was believed he would exceed distance records also. For his record to be recognized, however, he must land at the point of departure.

Maj. Maddalena, who participated in the rescue of Gen. Umberto Nobile's crew of the dirigible Italia in the Arctic in 1928, is planning a flight to New York by way of the Azores.

Flier Who Was Seized By Moors Reaches Ship

Madrid, June 1 (A.P.). — Commandante Ricardo Burguete, Spanish army aviator who was captured by Moorish tribesmen in the State of Rio de Oro last Wednesday after he had landed in the desert, reached the Spanish gunboat Canalejas Saturday, but the government here has no news of his three companions.

Commandante Burguete was accompanied by Capt. Nunez Maza, Vincente Ferrer, a mechanic, and Mohamed Ben El Buya, a Moorish chieftain. They were in two planes bound from Cape Juby, a city in the Spanish African colonial possession, to Morocco, and were taken by Nomadic Moors when forced to land. The government believes the others probably have been released and will appear on the coast or at a Spanish outpost.

Farm Tenant Shoots Owner; Kills Himself

Galien, Mich., June 1 (A.P.).—Enraged at service of a notice to vacate a 60-acre grain and stock farm, a mile west of this village, Jacob Till, 37-year-old tenant, today shot and killed the farm owner, Henry Krug, Chicago coal dealer.

Injuries Suffered at Fire Are Fatal to Capt. Swann

Acting Battalion Chief, Veteran of Capital Department, Fell 25 Feet Down Elevator Shaft Week Ago While Fighting Flames.

The name of Fire Captain Harry W. Swann, of Engine Company No. 12, will be inscribed in the "killed in action" roster of the Fire Department.

Capt. Swann died early yesterday at Emergency Hospital from injuries suffered a week ago tonight while fighting a blaze at the Stern Co., manufacturers of store fixtures, at 120 Q street northeast. Capt. Swann was directing fellow fire-fighters when he fell 25 feet down an elevator shaft.

Cat. Swann's injuries, which consisted of an injured spine and leg injuries, were not at first regarded as serious, but he took a sudden turn for the worse yesterday. His wife was at his bedside when he died.

The death of Capt. Swann ends a spectacular career in the department. He became a private in July 1905, and advanced to the rank of captain in May 1928. He was acting battalion chief when he met his death.

Capt. Swann participated in many of the big fires in the District, assisting in the rescue work at the Knickerbocker disaster in 1922.

Beside his wife Capt. Swann is survived by a daughter, Nellie, 15 years old. Services will be held from his home at 1604 Otis street northeast. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Theory of an Overheated Electric Iron Is Held Most Plausible.

GLEN ECHO PARK IS CLOSED IN RESPECT

Fires Built in Oil and Coal Stoves Also Seen as Possible Origin.

FATHER, ONLY ONE TO SURVIVE, RECOVERING

Services for Mother and Five Children Will Be Held on Wednesday.

With all clews lost in the grim pile of ashes which is all that remains of the once happy home of William T. Moxley, adjoining Glen Echo Park, nothing but theories are presented to solve the mystery of the fire in which Moxley's wife and five children met tragic death early yesterday.

When it was disclosed that shortly before the blaze was discovered Mrs. Moxley had recovered from a neighbor the borrowed cord of her electric iron in order to press her daughter's dress for church, the possibility was advanced that perhaps her neglect to disconnect the iron may have started the blaze. This theory is given preference by Moxley and the police.

On the other hand, it has been learned that shortly after midnight Mrs. Moxley prepared a warm repast for her husband and herself on an oil stove in the kitchen of their home, and the suggestion is given credence that possibly she may have forgotten to extinguish the burner when they retired.

Glen Echo Park Closed.

Still another possible cause advanced for the blaze results from the fact that during the evening Mrs. Moxley had built a wood fire in a coal stove in the kitchen, and it is believed that sparks from this fire may have kindled the blaze that took six lives, totally destroyed two homes and badly damaged a third, and sent a neighbor of the Moxleys to the Moxleys to the hospital yesterday suffering from shock.

Thousands upon thousands of lighthearted Washingtonians journeyed yesterday by every conceivable mode of transportation to Glen Echo Park, joyous in anticipation of a day of merrymaking.

But as new arrivals reached the gates of the park literally in droves throughout the afternoon and evening, they found no sounds of music or laughter, and the huge park, strangely deserted, seemed to cast an aura of gloom that defied the brilliant rays of the June sun.

Funeral to be Wednesday.

Leonard D. Schloss, manager of Glen Echo Park, answered the hundreds of inquirers who stopped at his office to learn the reason for the closing, by pointing to the amorphous mass that had been the Moxley home. In most cases, the gesture was sufficient explanation.

The decision to close the park was made a few minutes after the first excitement surrounding the fire had subsided, when Mr. Schloss made a long distance telephone call to give the news of the tragedy to William F. Ham, president of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. which operates the park, who was spending the week-end at Harper's Ferry.

While the charred remains of his wife and five children, burned beyond recognition, lay in the funeral home of W. R. Pumphrey in Rockville yesterday, Moxley, himself badly burned and injured, rested at the home of his brother, Howard C. Moxley, at Claggettsville, Md., while sympathetic relatives made tentative plans for the sextuple funeral to be held at Montgomery Chapel on Wednesday.

Moxley, who lost his right arm in a planing mill accident about fifteen years ago, has been employed at two jobs for some time past. For the lats six years he has been the park cleaner, starting work about 4 o'clock in the morning, and generally completing his task some three hours later.

In addition, he was deputy marshal of the town of Glen Echo, spending his evenings, until about midnight, directing traffic and preserving order at the entrance to the park. He had returned home from that job and was taking his "40 winks" before starting his work in the park when the fire broke out yesterday morning.

After his release from Georgetown Hospital yesterday Moxley was unable to shed any light upon the probable cause of the tragedy.

At an inquest conducted yesterday by Dr. W. T. Pratt, health officer of Montgomery County, it was found that the deaths of Mrs. Moxley and her five children was caused by fire of unknown origin.

Electric Iron Theory.

Moxley advances three possible theories. One was that an electric iron, which his wife had used about midnight, may have become overheated. The second was that embers from a wood wire, which had been built in a coal stove in the kitchen may have been responsible, while the oil stove was suggested as the third possible reason.

The generally accepted theory, in the minds of Moxley, his relatives and neighbors, as well as of the police, is that the iron was the cause of the fire. Mrs. Moxley was engaged in the homely task of ironing her children's dresses when her husband returned from his work at the park shortly after midnight, when they sat down to a late supper in the kitchen of their home before retiring.

Did Mrs. Moxley, when she left her ironing to prepare the repast, forget to disconnect the iron, so that it became overheated, and, perhaps, set fire to the flimsy fabric of her daughter's Sunday frock?

Beaten Back by Flames.

Mr. Moxley said yesterday that the first indication of the catastrophe was about 1:30 o'clock yesterday morning, when he was awakened by an overwhelming sense of heat and suffocation. Arising, he said, he opened a door into an adjoining room occupied by two of their children, and was beaten back by "a solid sheet of flame," which burst upon him.

By that time, he continued, his wife and their other three children were awake. Rushing across the room to the window, he smashed the glass, and, making sure that the others were following him, he jumped out, calling to them to do likewise.

Jumped Through Window.

When he landed on the ground below, badly burned and bruised and with a deep gash cut in his arm when he broke the window pane, he waited for his wife and children to jump, but they never emerged from the blazing room alive.

Firemen who found them after the blaze was under control discovered Mrs. Moxley with her head resting on the window sill and her three children huddled on the floor, her arms clasping them tightly to her. Apparently she had been overcome by the heat or smoke at the very instant when safety seemed within their reach.

The dead are Mrs. Katie Moxley, 37 years old, and her five children, George, 14; Valinda, 11; Bessie, 13; Gordon, 8, and Eileen, 5. The bodies were removed to the Pumphrey Funeral Home at Rockville, where they were prepared for burial, and today they will be taken to the home of Mr. Moxley's cousin, H. M. Snyder, at Mount Airy, Md., for interment Wednesday at Montgomery Chapel.

Park Ordered Closed.

After being treated at Georgetown Hospital, where it was found necessary to take 40 stitches in his arm, Mr. Moxley left the hospital early yesterday and went to Glen Echo. After a brief inspection of the ruins of his home, he went to Rockville where he spent the day with his brother, Joseph Moxley, keeper of the jail. From there, under doctor's orders to get out into the country and rest, he went on to the home of his other brother, Howard, at Claggettsville, where he plans to remain indefinitely, eventually returning to resume his duties at Glen Echo.

Mr. Schloss said yesterday that Moxley's job would be held open for him "until he's ready to come back to it." The order to keep the park closed yesterday was issued by Mr. Ham as soon as he was notified of the tragedy at Harpers Ferry, where he had gone to spend the week-end.

Mrs. Jean Riley, a cashier at the park, whose home adjoining that of the Moxleys was also destroyed as the flames spread, was taken to Georgetown Hospital yesterday suffering a complete breakdown from shock.

Arrangements are being made to secure the Rev. Mr. Bryan, of the Methodist Circuit at Ridgeville, to officiate at the funeral rites Wednesday.

fuls of salt and considered their onslaught triumphant. The attack had been advertised as a "final raid" by the Nationalist leaders, and they had spent a week in preparing for it.

Many persons were arrested and among them were nine women, headed by Mrs. K. M. Munshi, wife of a former member of the legislative assembly. The women were later released.

A few volunteers who straggled afoot to the salt pans early in the morning were soon joined by large crowds who arrived in automobile trucks and private cars. After breaking the police cordon, the raiders grabbed handsful of salt, and, covered to the waist with slush and mud, returned to Bombay triumphantly exhibiting the salt tied in handkerchiefs and shouting the usual cry, "we have broken the salt laws."

Automobiles bearing additional volunteers and decorated with tricolored flags dashed at breakneck speed along the highway to Wadala, through other groups of raiders marching three and four abre st.

The military troops succeeded in driving all the raiders outside the police line where law breakers squatted along the railway lines which run parallel with the salt pans.

Intermittent raids, however, continued until noon, when the Nationalist leaders sounded bugles to recall their followers. By 1 p. m. only a few spectators and some newspapermen remained on the scene.

The police made only 40 arrests altogether. The women who were arrested early in the day were brought to Bombay in a police van, and officials intimated that they would be released shortly. An attempt of 300 volunteers to rush the Juria end of the government's salt pans was frustrated by police, who charged with their bamboo clubs, dispersing the raiders.

Nationalist leaders announced that they would not repeat the raids immediately, but the infantry remained on guard at the southern end of the salt-pan area, while the police were withdrawn for a distance. A group of arrested raiders who were awaiting trial here attempted to escape from their improvised prison to join in the raids, but were held in by police.

Alleged Suicide Attempt Leaves Woman Badly Hurt

Tired of living, Mrs. Harriet McNash, 66 years old, of 35 Drummond avenue, Chevy Chase, Md., attempted suicide early yesterday, according to police, by slashing her throat with a butcher's knife. The woman was removed to Emergency Hospital where her condition is regarded as critical.

Mrs. McNash, police say, left her room about 1:30 a. m. and went to the garage in the rear of her home where she inflicted the wound. As the blood began to flow, she became frightened and called for aid. When no assistance arrived, the woman, weak from the loss of blood, crawled to a porch in the rear of her home, about 50 feet away from the garage.

Her moans and cries were heard by her son, H. M. Frampton, said to be a lawyer practicing in Washington, who found his mother lying in the corner of the porch. He summoned the hospital ambulance.

According to Policeman Douglas Bosh, the woman said that she wanted to die because she was tired of living.

PRESCHOOL CLINICS LISTED IN FAIRFAX

Parents Urged to Have Their Children Examined Before Fall Term Begins.

SCHEDULE IS ANNOUNCED

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The Fairfax health office is busily engaged in sending announcements to parents of children who will enter school for the first time this fall, asking them to have their children examined at the pre-school clinics before the fall term begins. While there is nothing obligatory in connection with these clinics, the parents are urged by Dr. Robert E. Feagans to cooperate with the health unit in seeing that all physical defects of the children are discovered in time to have them corrected before the opening of the next school year.

No charge will be made for this examination and the health unit will cooperate with family physicians if the parents prefer to have these examinations made by their own doctors. If at these examinations it is discovered that the child has not been previously vaccinated, the health doctor will vaccinate the child for 15 cents, the actual cost of the vaccine. The health officers especially urge that the mothers of the children accompany them to the clinics so that if any defects are found they can be instructed as to the best means for remedying them.

The first clinic was held Friday at the Fairfax School by Dr. Feagans and Mrs. Fannie Lou Seamons, county health nurse. There thirteen children were examined. The clinic will be held today at the Madison School at Falls Church, and tomorrow at the Franklin Sherman School at McLean. Next Monday it will be held at the Herndon School; Wednesday, June 18, at Vienna; Friday, June 20, at Lee Jackson; Monday, June 23, at Lorton; Wednesday, June 25, at Potters Hill, and on Monday, June 30, at Centerville. All clinics will open at 9 o'clock in the morning and if the parents can not accompany the children to the nearest clinic on the date set for it, the children will be examined at any other clinic.

ARLINGTON SEWER LEVY FIGURED HIGH

Engineer's Statistics Fall Short, Says Clarendon Citizens' Leader.

BOARD'S PLANS ASSAILED

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

"The $2,000,000 sewer bond issue recently proposed by the Arlington County Board of Supervisors would require an increase on the tax levy of from 45 to 50 cents, instead of 30 cents as estimated by the board," said Frederic P. Dewey, of Clarendon, secretary of the Clarendon Citizens Association, in a statement issued last night.

"According to County Engineer Kinnier's own statement," said Mr. Dewey, in determining the increase in the tax levy necessary to care for the sewer bond issue, he had used the same table of property values in the county covering the next thirty-four years as was used by County School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp in computing the cost of the school bond issue. According to that table, a 15 cent levy will carry a bond issue of $640,000. The 30 cent levy proposed for the sewer bonds will, accordingly, take care of $1,280,000 out of the proposed total of $2,-178,000.

"This will leave approximately $900,-000 to be carried by the annual service charges. Mr. Kinnier has stated that of the $10 annual service charge, $4 will be necessary for the annual maintenance of the system, which will leave only $6 to be applied on the bonds. At 4½ per cent interest, it will require $40,500 to pay the interest alone on the $900,000 of the bonds, which must be cared for out of the annual service charges, to say nothing of the curtailment of the bonds. It will require 6,750 users at $6 each to yield a sufficient sum to cover the interest charges. Since the total number of homes in the county does not exceed 8,000, it is apparent that there will not be a sufficient number of users for many years to come to finance the sewer bond issue on the basis announced by the board of supervisors. An average of 2,500 tappers for the first ten years the system is in use would be a very generous estimate. The service charges from these would care for approximately $300,000 of the bond. The other $600,000 will have to be cared for out of general taxation. A levy of 45 cents is the very least that will be required to carry the $2,000,000 bond issue, unless the annual service charge is doubled or tripled."

Mr. Dewey also criticized the proposal of the board of supervisors to take over for operation existing systems of laterals at their present estimated value and reassessing the property owners at the full rate of $1.50 per front foot. "It is possible under this arrangement," said Mr. Dewey, "for the board to take over an existing system of laterals allowing the property owners a credit of, for example, 75 cents a front foot and immediately reassessing them at the full rate of $1.50 per front foot for a lateral which, according to the county's own appraisal is worth, and for which it is paying, only half that sum. If that proposition is not untenable in law," declared Dewey, "it certainly is not tenable in morals, and if the board does not immediately recede from its announced position in the matter, it is likely to cause the defeat of the bond issue."

Dr. Benjamin F. Russell, of Herndon, Va., surgeon in the Confederate Army, is announced as the principal speaker at the special Jefferson Davis celebration and memorial exercises to be held under the auspices of the Arlington Chapter No. 149, United Daughters of the Confederacy, tomorrow night at 7:45 o'clock in the rooms of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce at Clarendon.

RUMRUNNERS SLAY PAIR OF POLICEMEN

Two Held in Detroit After Men in Auto Fire on Patrolmen.

CAR HAD HIT WOMAN

Detroit, June 1 (A.P.).—Two police officers of Grosse Pointe Park, Detroit suburb, were killed in a gun battle with rumrunners early today. The dead patrolmen are Edward Mayers and Claude Lanstra.

Mayers and Lanstra had been sent out to look for a car which struck and seriously injured an unidentified woman. A witness had given police the license number of the car. The accident occurred in a neighborhood near the outlet of Lake St. Clair, where liquor boats are known to cross from Canada.

The officers found the automobile with the reported license number near the place where the woman was injured. Mayers went over to the car to investigate. One of the occupants of the car shot him through the head, killing him instantly. Lanstra opened fire, but also was shot down.

Officers of the Detroit Italian squad found the automobile today. It had been penetrated by several bullets. Frank D. Mascurto, 24, alleged rum runner, and his father, Sam, were arrested near the car. Police were searching for Sam Ricca, of Flint, under whose name the car is registered. Police said Ricca is under $25,000 bond in Flint awaiting trial for automobile thefts.

Brickbats & Bouquets

By JAMES HAY, JR.

AFTER taking a swift but trustworthy poll of the boys and girls, we discover the unanimous verdict to be that the amiable and acidulous Mr. Caraway "took in just a leetle more territory than he could kiver" when he said: "However much they may profess, the fact is that most of the Washington lobbyists have no speaking acquaintance with any one in the legislative or administrative branches of the Government."

If the brilliant chairman of the Senate lobby committee had turned the thing around and made shrewd comment on the way members of Congress some times are talked deaf, dumb and blind by lobbyists, he would have torn the heart out of the bull's-eye of accuracy with the arrows of his analytical denunciation.

* * * * *

GETTING up a speaking acquaintance with a member of Congress in Washington is the easiest of all the achievements of the sons of men. It makes the proverbial act of falling off a log seem by comparison, as complicated as picking a burglar-proof lock.

I have observed a lot of lobbyists more or less casually, and I have yet to see or hear of one who at the crack of anybody's gun couldn't go up to the Capitol, send his card into a legislative session and, within a few minutes, be seen holding some lawmaker in apparently solemn and weighty conference in a corridor.

ANY man can get up a speaking acquaintance with a senator or representative if he has a clean collar and voice enough to announce that he is from the old home State, God bless it, and knows old Dr. Jake Goldpile, president of the Snickers Gap National Bank.

In fact, the legislator often works up an overpowering outburst of smiles, cordiality and effusiveness when the stranger at the door puts over an intimation that he holds within the depths of his voting omnipotence the power to light a fire under the statesman back home.

What makes fake lobbying so easy in Washington is that a certain type of representative or senator, upon hearing that somebody can have a lot of protesting telegrams and letters showered upon his desk, rushes forward to meet the mysteriously powerful personage with a rapidity that combines the high speeds of a scared rabbit, a dusty antelope and a panic-stricken but agile kangaroo.

* * * * *

TALK about the credulity of outsiders, who hire the lobbyists! What, we humbly rise to inquire, about the credulity of a member of Congress who hears that a noisy minority in his district or State is about to rip his scalp right off his statesmanlike skull?

As long as we have the noisy minority and the congressional knee with a hinge in it, Senator Caraway's lobbyists are going to find life in Washington a bed of roses, a lilac-hung lane of luxury and a primrose path of dalliance soft and easy.

THREE KILLED, FIVE WOUNDED AS GANGLAND FEUD FLARES

ning, the proprietor, was asleep on an upper floor. It was after the food had been eaten and they were drinking that death stalked in.

Bullets Rain In Room

There was a crash of glass at a window that commanded the table and that section of the room. Instantly out blazed the staccatto throb of the machine gun. All at the table were shot down. All save the woman crawled out of the line of fire. She was stretched out under the table.

When the waiter and Manning ran in, the machine gunners had withdrawn and the exhaust of their automobile could be heard as they sped away. Manning found his dining room a shambles. Crimson trails led to a stairway and the barroom. In the latter Berthsche was found dead. Pollar had crawled partly up a stairway. He was dead on the steps.

Quirk's body was found near a door where his automobile was parked. Druggan was picked up in a closet. He mumbled a story about trouble over a woman, but this did not remove the belief of the authorities that the slaughter had its root in Chicago and probably in the St. Valentine Day massacre.

Tried to Drive Moran Out.

Less than 2 miles from the scene of the latest machine gun display is a fishing resort known as Cassidy's. This place has been popular with "Buga" Moran and his squad of racketeers. State's Attorney Smith attempted to drive him out of Lake County last year. He prosecuted both Moran and Mrs. Cassidy, but Moran won and continued his patronage of the place.

The theory of the officials is that members of the Moran following may have driven over last night from Cassidy's and carired ou ta reprisal.

One of the men who escaped dragged Druggan and the woman to Quirk's car and drove them to the University Hospital, in the Druggan district of the West Side. He summoned Dr. Adolph Kraft, the Druggan doctor, and then left without making any explanation.

Druggan's Brother Faints.

When his brother, Willie Druggan, went to see George at the hospital later today he was overcome by the sight of the wounds and fell to the floor in a faint, breaking his nose.

In the effort to save George Druggan's life a teamster named Maloney, said to work for Willie Druggan, gave more than a quart of blood in a transfusion operation.

There were a dozen teamsters on hand offering blood. Dr. Karl Meyer said Druggan's right kidney was shot to pieces and that he had lost considerable blood on the long ride to the hospital.

Among those who appeared at the hospital with offers to give blood for Mrs. McGinnis was Alderman Frank Konkowski, a friend of the wounded woman's husband.

Three Shot Earlier in Night.

Earlier in the night three Italians were shot in Washington Park, Clark street and Delaware place, by gun fire from an automobile.

They are: Josepjh Ferrari, shot four times and believed to be dying in the Henrotin Hospital; Tony Tornatora, owner of a hardware store, and Sam Monistar.

They have been known as members of the Joe Aiello-Moran gang, but in the recent shifts in gang alignments may have switched their allegiance to the Druggan mob.

Pellar, Quirk and Bertache, the men killed at Fox Lake, have records as gunmen and racketeers extending back to the time when Dion O'Bannion held sway over the Chicago badlands.

One theory put forward tonight is that their murder may have been connected with the slaying yesterday of Philip Gnolfo and the wounding of two companions in an Italian colony on the rear Southwest side.

Gnolfo Was Reputed Killer.

Gnolfo, a reputed killer, was formerly aligned with the old Genna gang, long enemies of the Druggan Clan. A savage gang war virtually decimated the Genna outfit five years ago. Police say it is posible that an attempt on the part of the remnant of the gang to regain a share of lost power in the "Valley" might have reopened the old feud with the Druggan followers.

Quirk was formerly an associate of Gnolfo and was suspected of connection with several extortion plots accredited to the latter. Lately he is believed to have switched his allegiance over to the Druggan outfit.

Pellar was known to the police as George Druggan's bodyguard. He was with "Little Hymie" Weiss, successor to Dion O'Bannion as leader of the North Side mob, when Weiss was mowed down by machine gunners in front of Holy Name Cathedral in 1927.

Bertsche Known As Druggan Man

Bertsche has long been associated with the Druggan beer runners. Recently he served a sentence in Atlanta penitentiary for mail robbery.

Another possibility being looked into by the police is that the massacre at Fox Lake had to do with a personal feud between the Druggan and Aello-Moran followers. In connection with this, a report is being investigated that Leo Mongovern, a Moran gangster, disappeared a few days ago and may have been slain.

The ambushing of Tornatora, Ferrari and Monister is pointed to in support of this theory as the trio is known to have stood fairly high in Aello-Moran gang circles.

and working through the night and early morning in shifts, the refueling crew, in charge of Lieut. Comdr. J. C. Arnold, sent 780,000 cubic feet of pyrofax fuel gas and 420,000 cubic feet of hydrogen in the Graf's balloonets and gas tanks. With the exception of a small quantity of hydrogen to be put in tomorrow, the work of refueling is all completed.

Gondola Struts Repaired.

Civilian employes of the Navy were at work here all day repairing the struts of the aft motor gondola which were damaged when the wind bounced the ship on the ground while it was riding on its mast at Pernambuco, Brazil.

Among visitors today were John Henry A. Mears and Fred Melchoir, who expect to start this month on an airplane flight around the world to better the time of the Graf, whose circumnavigation of the globe in the fall of 1929 in 21 days broke the record established by Mears in 1928, jointly with C. B. D. Collyer.

Meantime, the passengers, many of whom, it leaked out, were very much disgruntled during the last three days of the journey over the sudden cancellation of the flight to Havana, are resting in New York. It is not yet known what passengers are going back and the names of new passengers, if any, are to be announced today by the Hamburg-American Line, passenger agents for the Zeppelin Works.

Two Women Injured.

Two women were injured and several more slightly scratched and bruised during the day.

Miss Henrietta Jacobs, of New York, fell in the hangar and fractured her right kneecap as the crowd pushed on and over her. She was treated by Lieut. Comdr. Mueller, of the Navy Medical Corps, and sent home in an ambulance.

Mrs. W. C. Hunt, of Syracuse, N. Y., fainted in the hangar and had to be taken to the station dispensary before Dr. Mueller could revive her.

The University of Missouri graduating class this June will number 826; the largest list of candidates in history.

RED RIVER LEVEES OUT IN TWO SPOTS

Breaks in Island District Flood 3,500 More Acres of Farming Lands.

PINEVILLE BANKS RAISED

Alexandria, La., June 1 (A.P.).—The swollen Red River broke through its levee in the "island district" in two places between Alexandria and Boyce today and spread over 3,500 acres of farm land.

Natives had moved out several days ago and no loss of humans or live stock was reported, but several dairy farms, as well as growing corn and cotton, were covered.

The levee went out despite all-night labors of volunteer workers. After daylight the gangs gave up their battle to hold the 40-foot wall of water within its channel and stood aside to see the levee crumble with a 15-foot crevice and within an hour spread to a 200-foot opening.

Shortly after the first break, another crevice opened a quarter of a mile below and let out another flow of water. The spread of the water was reported stopped this afternoon at Billy Bayou, three miles north of the city of Alexandria, where an emergency levee had been thrown up.

Alexandria was not believed by engineers to be in danger of inundation, as the city is protected by strong, high levees, but forces were at work to raise and strengthen the levee protecting Pineville, a town of about 3,500, across the river from Alexandria.

The river gauge stood here today at 40 1-10 feet within twenty-four hours. This represented a lower level than the disastrous 1927 flood by 2 2-10 feet. Another foot of water has been forecast for this area by the New Orleans Weather Bureau.

All during the night motorboats plied up and down the river above Alexandria carrying men, sacks and materials in an effort to prevent a further overflow. Already the flood has covered more than 200,000 acres of land in the upper basin and brought death to nine persons.

Water continued to fall today in the Shreveport area and was reported at a standstill at Colfax in Grant Parish, but was reported rising further down the river.

Two Are Captured By Woman Deputy

Arlington Officer Nabs Alleged Auto Thieves After Chase.

Mrs. Pauline A. Smith, deputy sheriff of Arlington County, Va., was successful last night in capturing two alleged auto thieves, after a chase.

Mrs. Smith was riding in her car in Rosslyn when she saw another car speeding, and gave chase. As she cornered the machine, one of the occupants leaped out and escaped. Two colored boys, Clarence Jones, 16 years old, and James Mosely, 14 years old, both of T street, near Fourteenth street, northwest, were taken in custody.

A check-up revealed that the auto had been taken three hours earlier in the District, from Rose Wander, of the Caselton apartments, Sixteenth and R streets, northwest, Mrs. Smith said.

Casualty Hospital. Alexander suffered abrasions on the head and body.

Walter F. Eck, 55 years old, of Chester, Pa., died at Casualty Hospital yesterday morning, four hours after his wife, Mrs. Nellie Eck, 65 years old, succumbed to injuries received in the same crash, which happened on the Baltimore boulevard near Berwyn, Md.

The couple were alone in a car which was coming toward Washington. It is said that the Eck's car attempted to pass another car. The hub caps of the two machines locked-throwing the wrecked car off the road. It made two complete somersaults before it came to rest against a telegraph pole.

Some difficulty was experienced in identifying Mrs. Eck, who died soon after the crash, as her husband was unconscious until his death. Mr. Eck's daughter, came from Wilmington, Del., to claim the bodies.

Helen Christen, 12-years-old, of 613 Morris street northeast, was seriously injured by an automobile yesterday afternoon while playing in front of her home. She was taken to Casualty Hospital suffering from a possible skull fracture. The car was operated by Edward L. Lee, of M street near Eighteenth northeast, who was held at the Ninth Precinct Station for operating with bad hand brakes and reckless driving.

James Steele, 27 years old, a soldier statoined at Fort Washington, Md., received serious head injuries yesterday afternoon in an accident on the Rockville road near Rockville. It is said that the man was riding a motorcycle at the time. He is in Sandy Springs Hospital.

On the Rules of Traffic
By WILLIAM ULLMAN

Pedestrians as well as motorists are restricted in their manner of using the street. There are regulations of speed and driving practices for the motorist, and similarly the law lays down rules for the pedestrian.

Under the District traffic code, pedestrians have the right of way at all uncontrolled intersection crosswalks, but are prohibited from crossing through moving traffic on streets where there are electric signal lights or where traffic is controlled by police officers. Between intersections, vehicles have the right of way.

Example: A driver is proceeding along Thirteenth street northwest above Clifton street. In the middle of the block, a pedestrian suddenly darts from behind a parked car and is struck. The burden of proof in this case is upon the pedestrian.

GOVERNOR ORDERS MOB PROSECUTION

Oklahoma Attorney General Arrives in Chickasha to Begin Inquiry.

ARRESTED MEN FREED

Chickasha, Okla., June 1 (A.P.).—Directed by Gov. W. J. Holloway to prosecute leaders of a mob who Friday night stormed the Grady County jail here and fatally injured Henry Argo, Negro, accused of attacking a white woman, Attorney General J. Berry King today started an official investigation.

King arrived here from Oklahoma City today and went into conference with county officials. He announced that Ed Crossland, an assistant attorney general would be assigned to assist B. F. Holding, county attorney, in bringing to trial leaders of the mob and those charged with rioting.

G. W. Skinner, husband of the woman the Negro was alleged to have attacked, and several other members of the mob were arrested here yesterday but were released without bond.

An inquest will be held Tuesday, the attorney general said. Possibility that the Federal authorities may be called to take a hand in the prosecutions was intimated tonight by King, who said Frank Lee, United States district attorney at Muskogee, may be asked to assist on the grounds that an Army truck had been virtually destroyed by the mob.

Lee Ready to Act.

Lee at Muskogee said if he received information that there had been a conspiracy to destroy the truck or to damage Federal property, it would be his duty to prosecute.

Argo died at the university hospital at Oklahoma City from gunshot and knife wounds an hour after he had been taken there. Examining physician said he had been shot in the head, the bullet piercing the brain, and that he had received knife wounds about the lungs.

The mob formed before the county jail here shortly after Argo was arrested and placed in jail. He was identified by the woman as the man who attacked her.

After entering the jail but failing to take the Negro, held on the second floor, the mob quieted down only to break forth again early Saturday morning.

Sightseers Allowed to Enter.

Shortly after daylight officers, believing the mob had spent its fury, permitted sightseers to enter the jail. Skinner accompanying the group, admitted he stabbed the unconscious Negro with a long knife.

Wrapping Argo in a blanket, officers carried him through the curious crowd which thought he was dead, and placed him in a waiting ambulance which took him to Oklahoma City.

Efforts were made during the rioting to set fire to the jail, which officers said was virtually wrecked.

King said several arrests probably will be made after the coroner's inquest Tuesday.

Cuba Lightens Tourists' Burden.

Havana, June 1 (A.P.).—The Cuban government has decided to abandon the practice of forcing visitors to declare the amount of money they have before landing in Cuba. Frequent controversies between customs men and visitors resulted from enforcement of the law last winter, and numerous complaints were received by steamship lines.

that of the $65,300 which Mr. Jameson had given to me to use in whatever way I thought would be most effective to secure the defeat of the wet Tammany candidate, Gov. Smith.

Tells Allocation of Funds.

"I had allocated $17,000 for the use of the headquarters committee of the anti-Smith Democrats, operating throughout the South, and had allocated $48,300 (all of it) for the use of the Virginia anti-Smith Democrats for regular State campaign purposes—speaking, canvassing and organizing thoroughly, and admittedly successfully, the 100 counties and 20 cities of the Commonwealth to insure the defeat of the wet candidate."

Bishop Cannon said he could not understand on what basis the lobby committee could inquire into the anti-Smith Democrats' political activities or "why political activities in Virginia alone should be investigated."

He added that full report had been made on the funds of the headquarters committee of the anti-Smith Democrats which operated throughout the South, and that there should be no difficulty in interpreting his telegram.

CROWDS WELCOME PRESIDENT ON TRIP

Ambassador to Italy, at Greencastle, where the party had lunch. A brief stop was made at Harrisburg to allow Gov. Fisher and Mr. Cooke to alight.

A surprised congregation and pastor, the Rev. H. L. Jarrett, faced the Chief Executive as he was ushered into the little church, to which he had been directed by a passerby on a street of Liverpool, and soon after he had entered every seat was filled and scores more waited outside for him to emerge.

At the home of Mr. Fletcher, an old friend of the President, the hosts were kept waiting for more than two hours and lunch was not served until nearly 3 o'clock. Mr. Hoover had breakfasted at the Cooke Lodge before 8 o'clock. The line of cars moved slowly through the almost continuous small towns along the beautiful Susquehanna trail, however, and, despite the motorcycle escort that stopped all traffic coming both ways and blocked interecting highways, high speed was never attained.

The Chief Executive apparently was enjoying the reception he received, and in the open country gazed interestedly at the magnificent landscapes that unfolded before him.

Fletcher Doubts Rumor He Will Be Appointed

Greencastle, Pa., June 1 (A.P.).—Henry P. Fletcher, former Ambassador to Italy and a close personal friend of President Hoover, said today that if he was being consiered for the vacant post as American Ambassador to Japan he knew nothing of it.

"If I had wished to continue in the diplomatic service," Mr. Fletcher said, replying to queries of newspapermen in connection with reports that he was under consideration, "I should not have resigned at Rome and come home."

The former ambassador also disclaimed any knowledge of the source of reports that he was to run for Governor of Pennsylvania as a wet.

Quake of 25 Minutes Causes Fear in Tokyo

Tokyo, June 1 (A.P.).—The longest and strongest earthquake of the year today had left only minor damage in its wake. Of twenty-five minutes duration and twelve millimeters magnitude, the disturbance stopped clocks and caused frightened people to desert their homes, but nowhere in the affected area were any casualties reported. The quake heavily shook an area within a radius of 60 miles of Tokyo.

An official communique issued by the Tokyo Central Meteorological Observatory said the disturbance was centered in the Pacific Ocean eastward from Tokyo. The quake was perceptible to observers for six or seven minutes.

Spanish Prince Delivers Note To President

Infante Don Alfonso Paid Honor at Luncheon During Visit.

A BRIEF visit of royalty was paid to Washington yesterday and Saturday by his highness the Infante Don Alfonso of Orleans, first cousin of the King of Spain, who arrived at Boiling Field Saturday. The Infante arrived Saturday morning in Lakehurst, N. J., aboard the Graf Zeppelin and flew here in the afternoon in a Navy plane piloted by Lieut. J. J. Clark, executive officer of the Anacostia Naval Air Station.

Though his visit was brief, the purpose of it is great: The Infante came to this country to personally convey the good wishes of the King of Spain to President Hoover, which he did last night when he was received by Mr. Hoover at the White House.

Yesterday afternoon the Spanish Ambassador and Senora de Padilla entertained at a luncheon in honor of the distinguished visitor. They had planned a dinner, but the Vice President who was to be among the guests, was unable to attend, so the occasion was marked with a luncheon at which the guests were the Vice President, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, the Brazilian Ambassador, Senhor S. Gurgel do Amaral; former United States Ambassador to Spain, Mr. Ogden Hammond; Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond, Mrs. Walter H. Schoellkopf, wife of the Second Secretary of the American Embassy in Madrid; Miss Josephine Patten, Secretary of the German Embassy, Herr Wolfgang Gans Edler; Herr zu Putlitz; Counselor of the Spanish Embassy and Senora Gonzales Arnao, Naval Attache of the Embassy and Senora de Iglesias, Attache of the Embassy, Senor Don Miguel Echegaray y Romea and Senorita Rosa Padilla.

The White House car with two aids resplendent in uniforms arrived at the embassy later in the afternoon to escort the infante to the White House, where Mr. Hoover received him.

Today the visitor will fly to Lakehurst and will return to Europe on the Graf Zeppelin.

Another passenger of the Graf Zeppelin who came to Washington Saturday was Col. Emilio Herrara, of the Spanish army, who flew yesterday with Lieut. Arthur Ennis, Army Air Corps, to Langley Field, Va. Col Herrara is chief of the technical division of the Spanish army air force, and expressed a wish to inspect the Army Air Corps tactical school lighter-than-air section and second bombardment group at Langley.

Navy Officers Prepare Shift From Capital

Five Members of Capital Ordered for Duty in Other Fields.

Subject to orders from the Navy Department, the Navy group in Washington shifts constantly and several changes are in prospect. Capt. E. J. Marquart, who, with Mrs. Marquart, has been making his home in Cleveland Park, will be detached shortly to sea duty. So will Comdr. Charles A. Baker and Lieut. Clarence Nelson Hinkamp, who have been on duty here for several years.

Mrs. Baker proposes to remain in Washington while her husband is at sea and will take possession soon of the charming old house in Oliver avenue, Georgetown, which they have recently purchased and which is being extensively remodeled. Commander and Mrs. Hinkamp also have a picturesque residence in Georgetown, where Mrs. Hinkamp, who was a Washington girl, the former Miss Frances Miller, expects to remain through the summer. In the autumn she will go to Panama, where her husband's ship will put in.

Lieut. W. E. G. Erskine, U. S. N., who has been serving as one of the White House aids is bound for Europe, having been detailed to one of the vessels which will take the midshipmen from the Naval Academy on their annual summer cruise.

One may also group with the Navy contingent Col. Calvin Matthews, U. S. M. C. He has been detailed to duty in Nicaragua and will set forth shortly for his new post. Mrs. Matthews, who was Miss Julia Mason, of Washington, does not expect to accompany him.

Mrs. J. Wilmer Biddle, of Binderton House, Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, accompanied by her daughters, Miss Elizabeth S. Gordon and Miss S. Stanley Gordon, will sail the end of the month for England, where they will visit Mrs. Biddle's daughter, Mrs. Howard Gwynne Keppel-Palmer.

Bridal Attendant

Bachrach.

MRS. BEVERLY COLEMAN has been selected by Miss Mary Todhunter Clark as bridesmaid at her wedding on June 23 in Philadelphia, when she will be married to Mr. Nelson Aldrich Rockefeller, son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, jr.

The conservative News and Courier of Charleston, S. C., closed an editorial with this comment: "We like the book"—praise, indeed, when charming "Lady Baltimore" was so ungraciously received by Charlestonians. The "Autobiography of a Chameleon" is also in demand for the libraries in the South because of its historical value, the latest to ask for it being the library of Marion, S. C., and the library of Charleston, S. C. "Shakespeare and Company" has become its distributor for the American colony in Paris.

Mrs. Calhoun is so encouraged by the success of her first book that she is now preparing a novel of Washington life, which she expects to finish this summer.

The entertaining volume of memoirs by Daisy Breaux Calhoun is enjoying a considerable vogue in Washington, the scene of one of the five "incarnations" into which Mrs. Calhoun's life story is divided. Other scenes of a really delightful tale are laid in Charleston, in Princeton, in New Orleans and in Harrisburg, Pa., with diverting stories of travel at home and abroad.

Midshipman Richard C. Drum-Hunt, who will graduate from the United States Naval Academy on Thursday, will return to his home at 1216 Sixteenth street northwest Thursday afternoon. He will spend a month's vacation in Washington, after which he will join his ship, the U. S. S. Concord. His brother, Frederick T. Drum-Hunt, has returned home, his school having closed last week.

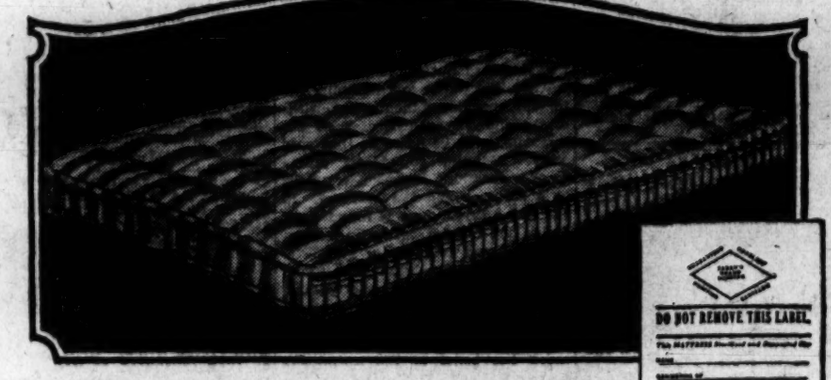
Mattresses Made New at a Cost of $4 to $9



It is really a new mattress when it leaves our factory, and guaranteed odorless, purified, sanitary. The label shown in the corner is attached to all mattresses which we sterilize and renovate, and shows the date upon which the work was done.

NO mattress used day after day and year after year can remain sterile and clean. You may sun them, you may air them, but dirt and germs hide inside. The health-giving ultra-violet rays of the sun cannot penetrate ordinary window glass. How then can they chase and destroy germs protected by heavy ticking.

The felting in any used mattress is invariably dark and dirty from dust that somehow penetrates the ticking. To prove this, we will show you the inside of any used mattress side by side with new fleecy felt.

No matter how springy the felt or hair, it gradually loses its resiliency just as a spring does under continuous use. Your rest is not as complete as on a new one.

The Only Way to Make Mattresses Sanitary and Truly Clean

The only way to make a used mattress sanitary and truly clean is to make it into a new mattress. We throw away the old ticking. All that is used of any mattress is the felt, cotton or hair inside—and that has been made sterile in an electric oven.

The inside is cleaned and combed and felted into fleecy snow-white felt rolls as buoyant as when first filled into the ticking.

The ticking is new—selected from a number of attractive colors.

At a cost of from four to nine dollars, you have a new mattress, instead of paying thirty or forty dollars.

Box Springs and Pillows Renovated

It will add much to your comfort to also have box springs and pillows made over. They, too, should be sterilized at regular intervals. Babies' mattresses and pillows particularly should have frequent renovating. The work is all done in our own mattress and box spring factory at factory prices.

A telephone call will bring our van. We guarantee that you will not be just satisfied—but delighted.

FOREIGN "REPRISALS."

No doubt many of the political speeches that are to be made on the tariff during these closing days of the session will dwell upon the alleged "reprisals" of foreign governments. The public has been asked to believe that the entire world is up in arms against the United States because of the new tariff. Certain gentlemen who are engaged in foreign trade are entirely willing to sacrifice the protection that shields American workers, farmers and manufacturers for the sake of currying favor abroad. These gentlemen persist in using the threadbare argument that "you can't sell unless you buy," and in the last analysis make it very clear that they would like to open the American market to all foreign goods except their own. One of the latest pleaders for free trade is Mr. Sloan, president of General Motors, who thinks the tariff should be jettisoned entirely. Thinking that he does not need any protection himself, he has no desire to see other Americans protected.

No more untenable position has ever been assumed than that which American automobile makers assume in dealing with the tariff situation. They are utterly unmindful of American interests. They would subject other manufacturers to the rigors of excessive foreign competition if they could thereby increase their own sales abroad. They would willingly see factories close and workers thrown out of their jobs. They are as shortsighted as they are selfish, and fail entirely to perceive that the loss of the American market by American producers would destroy the demand for automobiles. America buys 76 per cent or more of all the automobiles made, and yet these motor car makers would blindly kill the goose for the sake of grabbing a few foreign eggs.

Democrats and renegade Republicans who are attacking the tariff for political purposes are using the same arguments as are employed by the automobile exporters. But they are in a better position to learn the facts, and therefore they are even more reprehensible when they picture the world in arms against America's tariff. There is no truth in this picture of "foreign reprisals." From time immemorial, foreign governments have suggested to the United States that it should not raise its tariff, always hinting that vast benefits might be gained by permitting foreign goods to be dumped into the American market. They have not succeeded in fooling the United States, and when they discover that their effort is futile, they desist.

No foreign nation is in a position to enter into a tariff battle with the United States. Not one of them dares to make the trial. They are selling enormous quantities of goods to this country. Three-fourths of all American imports are on the free list. The United States is the best customer of foreign countries. It is an insatiable consumer, and it pays cash or its equivalent, at 100 cents on the dollar. If any foreign government should attempt to make "reprisals" against the United States because of any item in the tariff bill it would find itself a loser of immense sums by the diversion of American purchases to some other country.

International trade is not based upon sentiment or false notions of "reprisals." America produces goods that are needed abroad. It can sell them cheaper than its competitors can sell them. The foreign trader who would pay more for goods for sentiment's sake would soon find himself bankrupt in competition with rivals who buy from America.

So long as America produces the goods that the world needs, at prices lower than those demanded by competitors, it need not worry over the talk of foreign tariff reprisals. There will be none. The automobile manufacturers who are opposing the tariff that protects other Americans and holds the American market for American producers are in reality opposing their own interests and trying to destroy their own best market.

CANADA'S LIQUOR BAN.

The act to restrict the exportation of liquor from Canada to the United States became effective last Friday, when the governor general gave royal assent to the measure as approved by both houses of Parliament. The measure was sought by American prohibition authorities. In effect, it outlaws rum-running craft by withholding from their masters the right to obtain clearance papers for liquor cargoes bound to "any prohibition country."

The practical effect of this legislation remains to be demonstrated. No one pretends that refusal of clearance papers will of itself stop the running of liquor to the United States. The American demand for Canadian liquor will remain as extensive as it ever was, and with additional impediments placed in the way of its export the price it will fetch will be larger, the reward to its transporters will be more valuable, and the temptation to bootleg will be greater. Rumrunners have proved their ingenuity on more than one occasion. They may be expected to find a way to obtain cargoes of Canadian liquor for transportation to the United States.

The Canadian government will find that enforcement of the anticlearance regulations is no easy task. As soon as it is discovered that these regulations can be evaded greater evasion is bound to result, and Canada ultimately will be driven to the enforcement of the law. Thereupon, she will find that to prevent fleets of boats putting out from her ports with cargoes of liquor and other contraband, a police force of considerable size will be required; and once the force is established Canada may find that keeping it free from corruption will be most difficult. In enforcing the anticlearance regulations Canada will get a taste of the problems the American Government faces in enforcing the prohibition laws.

As a gesture of neighborly cooperation, the Canadian anticlearance regulations are noteworthy. If enforced they should be of material assistance to the American prohibition forces.

NEBRASKA'S MUDDLE.

The Middle West is accustomed to anomalies in politics, but seldom does a State fall into such a political quagmire as that which has engulfed Nebraska. Since Senator Norris came to Washington Nebraska has had to make its own definition of Republicanism, and blink at the discrepancies between its own creed and that of the party in general. In the 1928 campaign the Norris faction merged with the Democratic party in support of Al Smith for President. But now that his own fate must be again placed in the hands of the electorate, the senator becomes a Republican—to be correct, a Nebraska Republican.

Dr. Jennie Callfas, former Democratic national committeewoman, who is seeking the senatorial nomination from her party, would make an excellent opponent for Senator Norris, for she, too, is a party bolter. In 1928 she lent her influence to the election of President Hoover, and, as a result, was ousted from her position as committeewoman. At heart she seems to be a Republican, just as Senator Norris is at heart a Democrat. It remains to be seen whether the voters of Nebraska will have to choose between a Hoover-Democrat or an Al Smith-Republican.

To further complicate matters it appears that the hydrophobia senator, if he should be nominated, may have as a running mate a wealthy power magnate. Republican leaders are boosting J. E. Davidson, president of the Nebraska Power Co., for governor. Presumably the platform would call for bigger and better power trusts at home and louder outcries against outside trusts.

How Nebraska voters will see through this welter of politics is difficult to predict. With such an intermixture of parties the State can not hope to send either a genuine Republican or Democrat to the Senate. But such is the price that a State must pay when it supports candidates who are faithful to party ties only when they are asking for votes.

MEXICO'S RETURN TO SENSE.

When Mexico adopted a new criminal code last December it was the subject of lavish praise from theoretical criminologists, university professors and hundreds of others who follow the miscalled "liberal" school of thought in dealing with crime. One highbrow of Columbia University declared that "Mexico is now opening to law the way to scientific progress, of which the legislators of the United States have not even begun to think." Another proclaimed that Mexico had contributed its share toward the progress of civilization, and still another that it is "one of the greatest constructive events in the history of America."

Six months has been sufficient to convince Mexico that the new code is a failure. A commission of eleven jurists has been appointed to draft a new penal code, reinstating many of the features that were eliminated by the theorists responsible for the present law.

Mexico attempted to abolish the punitive system of dealing with criminals. The code was designed to supplant punishment with reform, and to change the entire social attitude toward the criminal. The idea that crime is inherent in some individuals, was banished. Crime became not an offense against society, but a disease.

On this theory the Mexican reformers attempted to apply purely scientific treatment to its outlaws. Trial by jury and capital punishment were abolished. A new method of judging crime was set up in which the diagnoses of psychologists, criminologists and psychiatrists were given foremost consideration. The courts were retained, but they were fashioned to apply the new method. Once a criminal was found guilty by this process he was given an indeterminate sentence and turned over to a "supreme council for social protection," which was supposed to apply the prescribed treatment to him.

Mexico's experience with this idealistic code should be a revelation to other countries. The belief that any people can cut away from the fundamentals of justice and usher in the millennium by installing a new criminal code is undiluted nonsense. Mexico's supposed change of attitude toward crime did not change the nature of crime or the criminal. Its abolition of the jury system apparently brought something worse, and now the time-honored right of the accused to be tried by his peers will be restored.

That the old methods of administering justice are defective no one can deny. Science in time will bring about vast improvements, but this can never come about by wiping out all that has been learned from the past and substituting a new system based upon untried theory. The only contribution which Mexico has made to progress is to reemphasize the fact that society can not be revolutionized by a single stroke of legislation.

DISABLED NURSES.

The House of Representatives recently passed without opposition the nurses' disability bill, offered by Mr. Woodruff, of Michigan, as amended by Mr. McSwain, of South Carolina. The bill extends the privilege of retirement, at 75 per cent of their active base pay, to all Army and Navy nurses found by a board of medical officers to have become disabled in line of duty. The Senate committee having this matter in charge has not yet reported the bill, although it has had ample time to do so.

Such a worthy piece of legislation should not be permitted to die in committee through mere neglect. It is merely doing justice to devoted public servants when Congress provides for Army and Navy nurses who have been disabled in line of duty. The dropping of disabled nurses, without thanks and without retirement pay, is a heartless and brutal rule which Congress should amend without delay.

PHILIPPINE DEFENSE

From the New York Herald Tribune.

When the naval treaty was being negotiated at London it was found necessary by our delegation to abandon the 5-3 ratio with Japan established by the Washington treaty in favor of a higher figure for the Japanese. This abandonment is now being praised in some quarters on the ground that it will make it impossible for the United States to act in an "offensive" capacity toward Japan and that Japan is also incapable of acting in an "offensive" capacity toward us. The London treaty, it is thus argued, will create a state of affairs wherein Japan has a navy adequate for the defense of its own coasts but inadequate to attack the United States, and wherein the United States has a navy large enough for its coast defense but not large enough to act offensively in Japanese waters. Thus, it is said, a perfectly fair arrangement is reached, quite in the spirit of the times.

But idealistic as all this may sound, it has no basis whatever in reality. The American flag is at this moment flying 12,000 miles from New York over the Philippine Islands. No one questions the fact that while we hold the Philippines we must be prepared to defend them. American naval policy, therefore, can not limit itself to a defense of the American coast. If such a limitation is forced on it, actual circumstances will show that such a limitation, however desirable in theory, is impossible from the practical standpoint. We must defend those islands regardless of the theorists. The question, therefore, is: Shall we be equipped to do so or must we flounder into it?

The contention that the United States and Japan are both left on a purely defensive footing is unsound from yet another standpoint. We have fortifications of a sort in the Philippines, most of which antedate by several years the Washington treaty. Under the terms of that treaty we were forbidden to fortify the islands any further. We agreed to this concession in exchange for Japanese assurances that Japan would be satisfied with the 5-3 ratio. Now the ratio has been changed in Japan's favor, but the United States has not obtained the right to give the men who might some day have to withstand attack in those tropical outposts the most modern protection. Therefore, though Japan has adequate "defensive" facilities, it is obvious that we have not. At present the artillerymen on the Island of Corregidor, at the entrance of Manila Bay, are not allowed to install gas-proof chambers, because under existing treaty obligations this is forbidden. Our soldiers are thus unprotected against one of the greatest of war's horrors—the gas attack. Yet would such protection be offensive? Could the fortification of our Far Eastern holdings be called "offensive" by any stretch of the imagination? It involves only protection and shelter, and if these are offensive weapons, then so is a bullet-proof vest.

There are many sound arguments in favor of the ratification of the London treaty, which this exposition of our Far Eastern responsibilities does not affect. But certainly the argument that the treaty gives Japan and the United States equal "offensive" and "defensive" power is not one of them. On both counts the score is indubitably against the United States.

JUST A MOMENT.

By STEPHEN B. STANTON.

A million little things will enmesh us if we hold not fast to the large. The details of life, if we let them, overspread our sky and shut out the sunshine of existence. Only where the hills draw aside are seen the mountains.

OZARK STRAWBERRIES.

The Missouri Ozarks have been growing strawberries in a big way for 30 years, says the Kansas City Star. Acreage planted during these years has run from 5,000 to 27,000 acres. Profits have run from a few dollars to $1,200 an acre. The strawberry is the eighth most valuable crop in the State and is the most important of all small fruit. Annual income has run as high as $5,000,000. As more than one-half of the income is paid back for labor and this labor goes out to thousands of men, women and children over a short period in midsummer, the strawberry is a great boon to Missouri country life.

CHAMPIONS.

There is always another following on
To take the place of the champion.
Ever and ever a step behind
The leader proud, if you look, you'll find
An eager heart and a flashing eye
Whose day of triumph is drawing nigh.

Brief at best is the longest reign,
The crown is won but to lose again.
This is the law for us all who live:
Who takes from another in turn shall give.
For the joy of triumph, however sweet,
Carries the seeds of its own defeat.
Courage must bow to a stronger will.

Skill makes way for a greater skill.
The records change and the records fall,
This alone is the chance of all
So to live that the world may see
Just what a champion ought to be.

With standards high, they must keep in mind
The future champions, just behind.
With courage and grace they must play their part,
Match fighting strength with a fighting heart.
They must teach those boys how to wear the crown,
And how, as men, they must hand it down.

There Would Be Few Great Men in History If the World Had Lived in Peace.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

IN a land where almost everybody tries to get rich, the degree of an individual's wealth usually is accepted as the measure of his ability.

That is a reasonable deduction, for a player's winnings certainly indicate his skill.

But there are many who do not play the game and many more whose play is profitless because fate interferes.

This second group is so numerous and yet so obscure that the practice of judging men by their winnings is much like awarding a national beauty prize to one of fifty contestants and overlooking the more beautiful thousands who did not compete.

Success may prove ability, but failure proves no lack of it.

Consider the case of a young pitcher whose teammates are not in his class.

He pitches a hitless game; the ninth inning begins without a score; an outfielder drops a fly; the shortstop fumbles an easy grounder and another man gets on; the second baseman fields a ground ball too late for a double play and throws wild to first.

Two men score and the game is lost.

A dozen similar games follow and the young pitcher remains in obscurity despite his possession of every quality essential to success.

Thousands of able men fail to win fame or fortune while fellows with less ability go to the top because they "get the breaks."

If your acquaintance is large, you know dozens of rich men who have so little education and so little intelligence that the only word you can use accurately to describe them is "dumb."

And you know keen, ambitious, able fellows who are held down by an invalid wife, a succession of misfortunes or their inability to find an "opening."

What does it profit a man to be the most brilliant reporter in America if nobody will give him a chance to show what he can do.

When publicity agents acquaint the world with another "find," the public assumes that a genius long in developing is being given a hearing because he has at last grown worthy of it.

More likely the man has been doing good work for years, almost despairing of recognition, and some freak of fortune has tardily brought him the opportunity that scores of his fellows could measure up to as well.

A successful man is one who stood near with his hammer when some big fellow wanted some hammering done.

The secret of success is contained in the words: "Mr. Humdinger meet the Head Knocker."

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

MR. TWITCHELL URGES CERTAIN TARIFF CHANGES.

Dear President Hoover:

As a citizen and a taxpayer I am appealing to you to kill the tariff bill.

If these schedules are not changed they will mean unprecedented hardship for the people. I speak with particular reference to the following items:

1. Ribbon fly-catchers.
2. Golf tees (new).
3. Feathers (for beds).
4. Violins, violoncellos and double basses.
5. Fishhooks (for pleasure).
6. Bleached beeswax.

The Senate, with a shocking lack of concern for the people of this country to whom fly-catching is an innocent and instructive diversion has raised the rate on ribbon fly-catchers to 45 per cent. This may mean revolution. To make it burdensome for our citizens to catch flies is bad enough even in boom times; to hamper the pastime during a period of business recession is disastrous. There will be more people with nothing to do but catch flies this summer than ever.

And why have golf tees been taken off the free list? Is this a mere coincidence or is it linked up with the same interests that want to throw cold water on fly-catching as a national pastime? Is it a plot to keep the public from having any good, clean fun?

Then there are the items of feathers for feather beds, fishhooks (for pleasure) and bleached beeswax. Are you for seeing feather beds made more and more prohibitive? Do you not fear the mood of the populace when, unable to afford ribbon fly-catchers, new golf tees and fresh feathers for feather beds, it learns that even fishing is to be more of a drain on the purse? And what about bleached beeswax? Ah, Mr. President, the American citizen is long suffering and he will stand for many things, but he will not be trifled with in the matter of beeswax.

* * * *

I protest, too, against the increased levy on Christmas-tree ornaments, bath salts (perfumed), clothespins, building bricks (glazed and unglazed), plaster statuettes, frogs' legs, frozen halibut, dried blood (dark) and dried blood (light). Many Americans can get along without bath salts, statuettes and clothespins, but it is dangerous stuff to make them pay more for Christmas-tree ornaments, frogs' legs and frozen halibut. As to this dried blood, light or dark, I am a little puzzled and it is news to me, with the ax murders and cabaret crimes at such a peak in this country, that America had to import blood, light, dark or medium. Still, I suppose Mr. Smoot knows best.

* * * *

However, there is one thing that cheers me, Mr. Hoover. Horsecollars, bridles, saddles and buggy whips remain on the free list. I understand that with soy bean oil cake (which is almost on the free list), alligator pears and dried egg yolks (36 per cent) they make very good eating.

Yours appealingly,
ELMER TWITCHELL.

BUILDING PLANS

Phyllis wants a big house,
I want it little;
We don't agree on
A jot or jittle.

She's picked a period—
Louis Quinze, or such;
I want Colonial
Or early Dutch.

She wants a dressing room,
I think it's silly;
She's sure to get one

No good to argue;
And never was;
She'll get it all as
She always does.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Value of Speedways in Developing Automobiles Vindicates Racing Even When Volunteers Are Killed.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Paul Marshall was killed when the car in which he was riding as a mechanic in the Indianapolis Speedway motor races Friday went out of control and crashed through the railing guarding the north turn of the track, and his brother, Cy, the driver, was severely injured; but Billy Arnold, of Chicago, practically equaled the track record to win the event, so the affair must be reckoned a success. Billy Arnold unquestionably would have broken the record had it not been necessary to slow down all contestants to a bare five miles an hour while the debris resulting from the smash-up of six racers was being removed from the track. No one was killed in the six-machine smash-up, nor even fatally injured, so the only matter of regret is that the accident should have occurred to prevent the establishing of a new record.

The excuse for automobile racing is that the speedway provides a testing ground for automotive design. Paul Marshall died in the interest of advancing the development of the automobile and the four persons who were killed when a racing car left the dirt track and crashed into a crowded grandstand at Winchester, Ind., on the same day, were also martyrs to progress. The fact that almost 200,000 persons witnessed these supreme sacrifices testifies to the public interest in the advancement of science, while the six-car smash-up that stood in the way of a new record at Indianapolis exemplifies how small, unforeseen factors everlastingly stand in the way to baffle man's best laid plans.

Automobile racing is not as common as it was a few years back. This is due, no doubt, to the fact that the automobile has been improved to a point approaching mechanical perfection. But the industry and the public should not fail to be grateful that the Indianapolis Speedway and other tracks have been kept in condition, so that there may be occasional tests of new automotive developments. Without speedways the nation probably would still be dependent upon the buggy and spring wagon for transportation. GEORGE GILMAN.

Proposes More Liberal Physicians' Permits So That All But Drunkards Can Get Government Liquor.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Are the differences between the wets and the drys to drive our country into anarchy

Those of us who lived in the old saloon days where one State was dry and the other adjoining wet well remember the intolerable conditions. For those who lived in the dry States the flow of liquor from the wet States was worse than the present bootlegging condition. How can our country exist half wet and half dry? No, gentlemen and ladies, it must be all wet or all dry. Plenty of witnesses can be found to tell of the intolerable conditions where dry and wet States bordered each other.

In a national referendum the best-informed men and women must believe that there will always be fourteen or more States that will vote dry, so that the repeal of the law can not be accomplished.

The best plan I have been able to think out is to have the physicians' permits liberalized so that persons not habitual drunkards can get a reasonable supply from liquors made under Government supervision and sold by same. As for beer, let 5 per cent be the limit. Then, as to stopping bootlegging, it would take public sentiment, backed by the full Army and Navy, if necessary, to do the work. But the wise man who can suggest the proper solution of the problem has not yet been discovered.

Railroad Safety Record a Challenge to Motorists—Mechanical and Human Coordination the Goal.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The record of the Southern Pacific sets a fine example for motorists to shoot at. For the past ten years not one passenger has been killed on these lines in a train accident. During the ten-year period 404,709,492 passengers were transported a cumulative distance of 15,915,677,462 miles.

What do these figures show? They illustrate that the great majority of accidents can be avoided by precaution and cooperation between the human and mechanical elements. The Southern Pacific Railroad has developed and coordinated these two elements, but careless motorists have not. This lack of precaution and coordination on the part of motorists is responsible for daily tragedies.

There will always be accidents unless automobiles are tested regularly to assure that they are mechanically perfect. After they are found to be mechanically perfect, drivers must be cautious, particularly during holiday and week-end periods. The example set by the Southern Pacific Railroad is a direct challenge to all motorists. ALFRED SANDBOY.

Adjustment of Employes' Pay Should Be Attended to Before Adjournment.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Some weeks ago the Senate passed the Brookhart bill, intended to undo that part of the McCarl ruling which denied equal increases under the Welsh bill. Since that time nothing has appeared in the press in connection with the bill and the officials of the clerks' organization have been woefully silent. While there is still time to get the bill before the House, unless some of the members can be made to feel the clerks are interested in it, they are not apt to make a special effort to get it to a vote. As a matter of justice this bill should be passed, as there was no good reason for some of the clerks being discriminated against simply because they were in a certain grade.

Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

WHY is it that when a feature becomes popular and listeners become attached to it that invariably some experimenting program director changes it? The charge is made that the group now appearing under the name of "Slumber Music" orchestra are simply an inferior substitute. They sound like it.

Such a protest has been made that the NBC has decided to reinstate Ludwig Laurier and the original "Slumber Music" string sextet, according to word from New York. Let us hope this is true and that Manager Berkley, of WRC, will give Washington this delightful hour again as was done last summer.

HERE is some news picked up over the air Saturday night. A brand-new organization, the General Electric Band, under the direction of Arthur Pryor, will be presented to the radio audience next Saturday night in place of Walter Damrosch, whose series has just closed.

Following the general trend the General Electric hour will be cut down to a half hour and will begin at 8:30 o'clock instead of 8.

There was something about the tone of Mr. Damrosch in his concluding talk which made us wonder whether it might not be his permanent farewell in so far as this hour was concerned.

Floyd Gibbons, however, has been retained as chief ballyhoo for the General Electric summer programs, for which it is understood he will receive quite a neat amount of pin money. We judge so, if the report is true that he gets $2,000 a week for his prohibition pool broadcasts alone.

WITH the application of a radio tube a Fifth avenue show window is being equipped to light up automatically as late passersby approach.

A new series of salutes, this time to cities, will be inaugurated by Westinghouse tomorrow night (WJZ—9 p. m.) with a salute to Chicago.

No doubt this will include bombs, pineapples and machine guns.

The Landt Trio and White will be a regular Tuesday evening feature during the summer months (WRC, 8:30 p. m.).

One of the most thrilling effects heard over the radio was the roar of the motors at the Indianapolis Speedway. Any one who has ever attended was taken back to the speedway, in fancy, as the cars roared by.

A person who had not seen the race said the sound coming over the radio reminded him of the noise from an old-fashioned sawmill on a summer afternoon.

WE are beginning to take Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick's radio talks pretty much for granted, but the British Broadcasting Corporation press bulletins are making a big feature of the forthcoming broadcast from Washington (WRC, Wednesday, 4:20 p. m.), expected to be heard throughout England.

A second exchange of foreign programs will be earlier Wednesday (WMAL, 8:45 a. m.), when Washington will hear a first-hand description of the British Derby direct from Epsom Downs.

An elaborate summer feature, "The Pleasure Hour," with two orchestras and an eighteen-voice chorus will have its first night Wednesday (WJZ, 8:30 p. m.).

Helen Kane, "Doc" Rockwell, Reinald Werrenrath, Willard Robison, Mary McCoy, Charles Pervin and Billy Hughes will also assist in keeping the ether accelerated.

ANDRES SEGOVIA, guitarist, who has made a fortune in concert and radio work, was practicing while traveling on a train. A Pullman porter listened to him and then said, "If you could just play the saxophone like that you'd sho make lots of money."

A short wave, traveling 186,000 miles a second, goes around the earth three times before it settles down.

Jane Interprets the Mode

For general and practical wear a tailored dress of navy blue and white dots is just the thing! (Courtesy of Phillippe et Gaston, Paris.)

Paris, June 1.

OF COURSE, all the world and you and I have been holding our breath and sort of peeking out of the corner of one eye to ferret out any indication of a bustle in the new mode. We've seen the stiff little hip flares made of tulle, and some bouffants in taffeta and still we couldn't exactly say that bustles were in.

Well, you can almost make a statement, not a bold statement, but just a whisper-y sort of one, to the effect that two bustles were seen flaunting themselves discreetly enough in the salons of Tollman.

One was a most harmless looking affair, really a big chiffon butterfly bow so arranged on the back of a chiffon dress as to suggest a bustle.

But there's just no mistake about the bustle on a pink faille evening gown in this same salon. It isn't even a discreet suggestion. It definitely is a bustle and bouffant-y one at that.

So what is a fashun-collum writer to think, alors???!

The weather is so fickle these days that one of Fashion's most interesting sources of information for checking up has practically disappeared from the fashion columns. For by the time the weather decided to be sunny enough to permit of real elegance making its appearance on the race courses, the racing season is over. One wears summer dresses—and fur coats. Jane Regny's lovely mode "Athenes" in moss green chiffon with a three-quarter length coat over a sleeveless bodice was, however, noted by us-on-the-job at the races last Sunday.

Whoever heard of wearing collars and cuffs on sweaters? Paris heard of it, and does it, right this very minute. Not any old kind of collars and cuffs to be sure, but some very special ones of a very special material, embroidered a certain way. Well, better send your stamped self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet telling you how to make them, because they are the smartest thing on the lot at the moment! They are worn on sweaters and on every kind of sports dress. Incidentally, the same stitch and the same ides may be used for the sweaters themselves as trimming, for sport bags and for hats of the beret and bonnet variety.

Practical dresses can be chic! Every now and then I am reminded of the fact that some people think the models I select from the Paris couturiers to illustrate for them here are extreme. Well then I get all serious about looking for very simple things that at the same time are sufficiently smart and interesting to sketch for my desh publique.

And in every salon of the Haute Couture there are to be found models that are smart and practical—like the one I illustrated for you today, for instance, navy blue with tiny white dots—that always stands for smartness all by itself, let alone the white georgette jabot.

Now to remind you again: The weekly Dare fashion letter appears in The Washington Post every Sunday.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

BLIGHT AN' OTHER GARDEN ILLS.

What was he doing, the great God Pan,
Down in the reeds by the river?
Spreading ruin and scattering ban,
Splashing and paddling with hoofs of a goat,
And breaking the golden lilies afloat
With the dragonfly in the river.

COOL nights and hot, sultry days are here; these, you know, are mildew and blight breeders. Do not wait until these diseases have ravaged your garden before you start to rout these enemies.

If the leaves show the slightest signs of being affected pick them off at once. After your plants are again clean it is necessary to spray them with a solution of ammoniacal copper carbonate. To make a small quantity dissolve 5 drams of copper carbonate in as much ammonia as is needed (usually 1 pint). This stock solution, if bottled, will keep. It is sufficient to make 10 gallons of spray when the water is added. Powdered flowers of sulphur is also efficacious, but it is a milder remedy.

Don't wait until the blight has done real damage before you start spraying all the plants in your garden.

Be sure to keep all the spaces between the plants loosened up so as to admit air to the soil. All tall flowers will soon have to be staked. If you do not do this you will find that by fall many of your choicest varieties have been broken by high varieties or dashing downpours of rain. Having done this, you should concentrate each morning on removing all dead leaves and withered blossoms.

Should your seedlings be attacked by green flies, so apt to put in an appearance in warm, dry weather, spray your plants with a solution of tobacco. If persisted with, this treatment will banish these pests.

Should red spiders attack your soft wooded plants, such as coleus and petunias, get out your garden hose. A forceful stream of cold water will cause the red spider to take a hasty departure. Any available nicotine preparation if applied every day will soon rid nasturtiums of insects.

Nicotine solution can be purchased in a concentrated form and should be used according to the directions upon the container in which it is purchased. Soap added to the mixture will help it to adhere to the bodies of the insects.

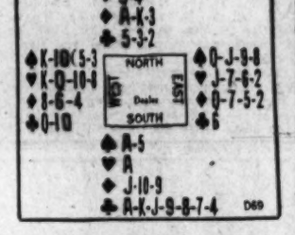
All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

WORK ON BRIDGE

MISPLAYED HANDS I HAVE MET.



The above hand was played in a game of Contract. South started with a bid of three Clubs. West, who would have bid Hearts had South been content to bid one Club, did not feel strong enough to go as high as three; and North bid five Clubs, thinking from South's bid of three of a minor that game could be obtained with the help of his two Diamond tricks, his normal Club support, and his Heart doubleton. After East's pass, South made a very dangerous bid of six.

Had the hand been played at Auction, South might have started with a pre-emptive four-Club bid; or feeling that his two major Aces made him strong enough to let in competitive bidding, might have bid one. In the former case his four-bid would have held the contract; in the latter, West would have bid a Heart, and North would have called two Clubs. Whether East or West advanced the Hearts would have been immaterial as South surely would become the Declarer with a bid of three or four Clubs.

When the hand was played West led his King of Hearts. South won, exhausted the adverse trumps in two rounds, and then tried the Diamond finesse. When it lost, South's small-slam bid was beaten because, in the late play, he had to lose one Spade.

THE CORRECT PLAY.

At the end of trick 3, with all the adverse trumps drawn, Declarer could see three entries in dummy (two Diamonds and the Five of Clubs). This was all he needed to establish a good Spade in that hand even if the adverse division were the probable 4-2; if the division were 3-3, dummy would need only two entries to establish two good Spades—and only one discard was needed by South.

In view of all this, South should have led the Ace and a small Spade to tricks 4 and 5. Then if an adverse Heart should be led, South should be careful to trump with any one of his four high Clubs (retaining the Four), and put dummy in with a Diamond (no finesse when West does not cover Jack with Queen) for the third lead of Spades. With that also ruffed high, dummy could be put in once more to lead the fourth round of Spades. This would establish dummy's thirteener which dummy would be put in to cash by utilizing the trump Five. On dummy's thirteenth Spade South would discard his last Diamond.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"Gemini"

IF JUNE 2nd is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9:30 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2 p. m., and from 7 p. m. to 8 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to noon, and from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m.

The astrological influences on this date are adverse for a happy spiritual or mental state, and nerves will be taut. Financial conditions will be normally stable. It will be difficult to carry on harmoniously or peacefully until the astrological atmosphere changes, and nerves are relaxed.

The child born on this June 2nd will have a stubborn will power, and if its parents are afraid to say "no," and mean it, it will be destined to receive many hard lessons from the world. It will have depth of feeling, and considerable courage, especially mentally.

You have a capricious nature, and as many moods as a centipede has legs—this applies to those of both sexes born on this date. You should take steps to prevent your state of mind from upsetting other people. If you cannot entirely conquer them, you can learn to control them. People of your type expect others to instinctively know just where their temperamental barometer stands, and to obey its warnings. Strange as it may seem, you have no tolerance or sympathy for others who are affected with the same trait; you ask for the world's rights for moodiness. You can be a most delightfully charming being; a pleasant companion, and a cheerful worker.

You can also be a morose being; a sour companion, and a disgruntled worker. It is difficult for your friends to keep step with you, and many give up in despair. Deep in your heart you long to be a "good fellow," and to be fair and square. You can always be depended upon to play the game concerning the big issues of life—it is only in the small things that you can be petty. When you are "glad," you love the beautiful things of life, and your spirits are bubbling over with the joy of living. In time of real trouble you are very sporting, and you hold up your end of the horn. Your affections are deeper than they appear.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

TRAINING THE BABY.

(From one year of age to eighteen months).

(Children's Bureau, Department of Labor.)

Feeding—Give the baby three regular meals a day. Give him a glass of milk at 3:30 p. m. unless it keeps him from eating supper. Begin to teach him to feed himself. As he learns to hold the spoon allow him to eat the last few mouthfuls without help.

Sleep—Put the baby to bed at six o'clock to sleep all night. He should have a long nap every morning.

Exercise and play—At this age the average baby learns to walk. To help him to learn to walk a play pen is much better than a "walker" and is useful both indoors and out of doors. During the play time the child should amuse himself. His room should be simply furnished so that he may be allowed to touch and investigate everything in reach. Always be absolutely consistent in what you let him touch or handle and in what he can do so that there will be no confusion in his mind as to what is right and wrong.

Sun baths—Give sun baths all the year round—the hottest months before 11 a. m. and after 3 p. m.; in cold weather between 10 a. m. and 1 p. m.

Patriotic Society Plans Pilgrimage

District Society of Sons of American Revolution to Visit Tomb.

Members of the District Society of Sons of the American Revolution will participate in a pilgrimage to Mount Vernon by boat Saturday, placing a wreath upon the tomb of George Washington, with appropriate ceremonies and addresses by a speaker whose name has not yet been announced.

The members and their guests will meet at the Seventh street wharf of the steamer Charles Macalester at 2 o'clock no transportation charge being made upon members, although a fee of $1 each will be charged for guests, it is announced by William Knowles Cooper, of 821 Fifteenth street northwest, in charge of arrangements.

Impressive ceremonies are being arranged to take place at the tomb, the same committees being in charge as those which officiated at a similar pilgrimage in April. In case of rain, the pilgrimage will be postponed until the following Saturday.

The Goofus Scollop

(With a bow to the Sporting Editor)

The Goofus Scollop I know has a wallop
And can sock with both right and left mit,
But his footwork is bad
As no training he's had,
So for ten rounds he hardly is fit.
Yet I'm sure he'll win his next battle
Which will make him the Goofusland Champ,
For he wears his belt high
Up over one eye
So is fouled if hit in that lamp!

DIVERS HUNT IN VAIN FOR LAUNCH VICTIMS

Kelp in Santa Monica Bay Makes Recovery of 13 Bodies Difficult.

TWO INQUIRIES OPENED

Santa Monica, Calif., June 1 (A.P.).—Divers groped through the kelp beds of Santa Monica Bay today in a fruitless search for bodies of thirteen persons believed lost when the fishing launch Ameco capsized Memorial Day.

Authorities definitely have fixed the total of lives lost at sixteen and said they believed the Ameco was overloaded when a great wave capsized the craft. Three bodies had been recovered previously.

Santa Monica police and Los Angeles County deputy sheriffs said they had proof that thirteen persons missing from their homes were aboard the Ameco. Unclaimed automobiles parked along the wharf, reports from friends and relatives, and descriptions of the missing by some of the 33 survivors aided authorities in compiling the list.

Capt. S. A. Kennedy of the United States steamboat inspection service said William Lightfoot, 21-year-old captain of the Ameco, had been warned not to carry more than 60 passengers on the fishing boat. An open hearing will be held Tuesday or Wednesday. If it is proved Lightfoot overloaded his craft, Capt. Kennedy said he would take the only action he is empowered to take—revocation of Lightfoot's license.

Simultaneously investigations were begun by the sheriff's homicide squad and the coroner's office.

Handicapped by the maze of kelp waving over the Ameco's hull, divers failed to locate any bodies after an all-morning search. Life guards said the bodies probably would be washed ashore by tomorrow or Tuesday.

The Ameco was located yesterday in 75 feet of water. Authorities after hearing numerous and conflicting stories from the survivors, said it appeared the Ameco was rolled over by a great wave after most of the passengers had moved to the lee side of the ship to escape the stinging spray of a sudden squall.

General Baking Firm Opens New Plant Today

When the new bakery of the General Baking Company is utilized for the first time today, the company will be able to turn out a new, smaller size loaf, it was announced. The new loaf, which is approximately two-thirds the size of the other, will be of particular convenience to small families.

The new bakery, which is at 2146 Georgia avenue northwest, is said to have the finest equipment in the country. The building and fittings cost more than $700,000. It contains a garage and loading room in which twenty-eight trucks can be loaded at one time. About 115 carloads of flour can be stored in the plant. Two new gas-fired ovens give it a capacity of 7,000 loaves an hour.

Convict Ship Tickets To Aid Hospital Drive

Members of the Board of Lady Managers of Casualty Hospital will intensify their drive this morning to dispose of 5,000 tickets for the benefit exhibition at the Convict Ship tomorrow in the interest of the $50,000 building and equipment fund.

Special lectures will be given on the historic boat by the guides, and a committee representing the hospital association will be on hand to welcome visitors. The entire proceeds of the ticket sales will go to the campaign.

AIRPLANE INDUSTRY OF U. S. IS COMING BACK, FISHER ASSERTS

Aviation Shares Shoot Up Faster Than Before Crash

American Airmindedness Seen as Growing to Major Proportions—Period of Overproduction and Slack Patronage Passing—Plane Safety Greater.

By IRVING FISHER
(Professor of Economics, Yale University).
Special to The Washington Post.

New Haven, Conn., June 1.—Government and commercial air routes are being rapidly extended. There is continued rapid advance in airplane invention and in regulations looking toward air safety. More airports are being planned and established. Small wonder that as the practical value of aviation becomes more evident airplane stocks should rise again, at a far greater rate than before the stock market crash.

A comparison of all-industrials curb index with that of aviation stocks is in point. All industrial stocks on the Curb Exchange fell, on the average, by 33.1 per cent from the high of 242.9 (1926 equals 100) on July 12, 1929 to the low of the following November 15, when they stood at 162.4. Since then they have recovered from their loss by only 16 per cent to 175.3 on May 16, 1930. But the aviation curb group which had risen to 989.0 on June 28, 1929, crashed to 329.6 on December 27, with a loss of 66.7 per cent; it then rose to 704.2 on April 11, 1930, then receded together with most other stocks in the recent reaction; rose again, and on May 16, last, the index stood at 596.7, representing a net recovery from loss by the crash of 40.5 per cent—as against only 16 per cent recovery for the all-industrials curb index.

Average prices of aviation stocks on the New York Curb Exchange rise faster during 1930 than during the boom period of 1929 with 40.5 per cent recovery of values lost during the crash.

The airplane industry was found last year to be overproducing. Drastic cuts were made in output schedules. The weak companies were eliminated by failure or merging. Costs were cleared. Fare rates were heavily reduced. The result has been sounder financing and increased patronage. The companies are carrying full loads of passengers and sometimes extra sections. But the present general rate of 5 cents a mile is not profitable, and the earnings of the industry are largely from air mail contracts and merchandise expressage.

Due to Expected Gains.

Receipts have improved. Yet the rapid rate of increment in stock values is not from present profits, but from expected future gains. A Diesel engine, adding to air safety against fire and interference with radio communication, and operating cheaply with crude fuel, has been made commercially possible. The air mail rate of 5 cents an ounce has been popularized, with greatly increased business. It is being predicted that eventually most first-class mail will be carried by plane, leaving the slower rail transit for second and third class mail. Improved instruments and radio have improved directional control and eliminated hazards. The new air commerce regulations are surrounding air lines engaged in the scheduled transportation of passengers with a safe uniformity of operation like that enjoyed by major railroads and steamship lines.

Today the 25,000 miles of established airways, over which 88,000 miles a day are flown, with stops at more than 200 cities, are giving a constantly safer service to an area occupied by 90,000,000 people. Col. Lindbergh predicts improved schedules by which it will be possible to "reach almost any destination without using other means of transport." He adds: "We can look forward to much higher speeds than we have at present. More efficient engines, reduced structural weight and better aerodynamic design will all contribute, and the possibilities of high altitude flying are as yet practically untouched."

Linking the Americas by Plane.

It was by high altitude flight that Lindbergh recently broke the record for the transcontinental trip, and started the service that will link the North and South American republics by way of the West Coast, supplementing the East Coast facilities. This service will bring mails in seven days between New York, Chicago, Boston, Montreal and other North American cities on the one hand and Montevideo and Buenos Aires in South America on the other. In fact, it will connect with the 25,000-mile airway network now covering the whole United States.

It is in a new industrial expansion of this type, helped by popular acclaim, that airplane stocks are becoming more soundly based. Up to 1930, the industry had increased to fivefold its output in 1925, and threefold in the two years 1927 and 1928. It is probably growing still faster this year, if we may judge from the rate of increase in stock values for the 1930 portion of the curve in the accompanying chart. Certainly, compared with the original growth of steam railroads, the growth of this latest means of transport is satisfactory.

STOCKS CAUTIOUS IN UPWARD TREND

Sixteen Out of 20 Groups Advance; Last Month's Losses Wiped Out.

PARIS IN SHARP DROP

By H. B. BROUGHAM
(Irving Fisher Service).

Doubly scrutinized since the disappointment in retarded business recovery, stocks are again recovering from slump and moving definitely upward. Prices on the New York Stock Exchange have shown an upward trend since May 5 low, closing last week up 6.1 per cent from that point. The upward movement has been at the rate of one-third of one per cent a day for the last nine days; compared with the daily rate from May 5 to 14 of four-fifths per cent, this shows that prices have been advancing at a far from oversanguine rate up to the close of the month.

The index of all common industrials at last week's close was only 0.4 of a point below the high for the last month on May 14; the losses of the month's recession have been virtually recovered.

Of the 320 stocks in the Irving Fisher selection, 39 per cent were up in price at last week's close, 20 per cent were off and 41 per cent showed no change. Of the twenty group indexes, 16 advanced, notably radios, by 5.2 per cent; chemicals, 4.2 per cent; office equipment, 3.8 per cent; auto accessories, 3.6 per cent; electrical equipment, 2.9 per cent, and utilities, 2.8 per cent. Farm machinery, rails, motors and household stocks lost ground.

Trading Value Sharply Off.

The value of tradings of stocks on the New York Stock Exchange has now been declining for three consecutive weeks. Average for all stocks has declined from the week ended May 9, the high for 1930, 59 per cent to last week. Industrial common stocks tradings have declined 60 per cent in the same period.

Eight of the twenty groups made gains in values traded last week, which were counteracted by the larger falls in twelve groups. Motors, stores, machinery and railroad equipment and chemicals were the groups leading in the rises as utilities, steels, coppers, electrical equipment and tobaccos led in the falls.

Total trading for May was less than 80,000,000 shares, smallest volume for the month in three years, and a decline of nearly 30 per cent from April's total, notwithstanding heavy tradings at the beginning of May. Curb volume declined in like proportion.

Paris Prices Make New Low.

Paris stock prices took a sharp drop of 3.3 last week to 130.5, 2.7 per cent under the 1929 low of 134.1 on November 29. Stock prices in London and Berlin have been sluggish this year, with Berlin prices last week 8.1 per cent above the November low and London 2.6 per cent above the December low. Paris prices have shown a definite downward trend since January 17.

Since April 11, when stocks in general reached the 1930 high, Paris prices have dropped 12 per cent to date, New York and London 6 per cent. Berlin prices have made a slight gain.

The index of 225 industrial common stocks shows what a substantially representative $100 worth of stocks in 1926 would now amount to if held unchnaged since that year. This index is weighted by shares outstanding. The index of "50 most active," or market leaders, shows the result of reinvesting the $100 every week in the market favorites of that week. This index is weighted by shares traded, the list changing weekly. The last column of the table gives the average yield per cent on these weeks' 50 leaders at current prices.

Speculative Stocks Again Lead.

Gains were made in all the graded groups last week, speculative groups taking the lead with a gain of 2.4 per cent, and closing the week 0.1 point below the index of May 14. Investment stocks gained 1.9 per cent to close of last week, but 0.1 of an index point below May 14, which stood at 196.0. Semiinvestment stocks were up 1.6 per cent last week, closing the week 0.7 points below the index of 127.1 on May 13.

All three groups have shown an upward trend since the recent lows, with the speculative group up 7.4 per cent from the index of May 5; semiinvestment stocks up 6.3 per cent from the index of May 4, and investment stocks, showing the least activity, up but 1.2 per cent over the index of May 3.

Below are shown index numbers of prices of common industrials on the New York Stock Exchange, arranged in classes derived from Moody's ratings.

COMMODITY PRICES CONTINUE DECLINING

Refusal of Wholesale Level to Begin Turning Upward Disappoints.

FARM PRODUCTS SLUMP

The hope for a turn upward in the wholesale commodity price level last week was entirely dissipated when the index dropped still further down by 0.68 per cent to a level of 87.8. (1926 equals 100.) Four times as many commodities fell as rose in price.

This makes the rate of fall faster than that of the declining period in 1929. On July 26, of last year, the index stood at 99.1. In seventeen weeks the index dropped to 92.2. On November 22 prices had declined at an average of 0.41 per cent a week, showing a total loss of 7 per cent. Then followed a stretch of stability, lasting until February 7, when prices again assumed a downward trend away from a set level.

This fall, also at a rate of 0.41 per cent a week, went to March 28, when two weeks of advancing prices helped stabilize prices to some extent. Since then a still sharper fall has taken place. In the last seven weeks commodity prices have suffered a loss of 3.8 per cent, or an average loss of 0.55 per cent each week.

Money Buying Still More.

Because of the further fall in commodity prices the purchasing power of the dollar—its reciprocal—rose to 113.9, or nearly 14 cents more than the dollar of 1926.

Week ended—	Price index 1926 equals 100.	Index of Buying Power of $ (1926 equals 100 cents).

1924 average	100.2	99.1
1924 average	98.9	101.1
1923 average	101.1	98.9

The rather sharp decline in the wholesale commodity price level last week was centered chiefly in the agricultural division. Most of the individual item falls were of the raw materials category, with finished goods and semimanufactured goods dropping off slightly.

Leather and Metals Up.

Nonagricultural products held steady, with hides and leathers, metal products and chemicals up.

Foods and farm products were the groups that bore the brunt of last week's slump, with both making new lows. Farm products, off 1.90 per cent, have now counteracted the gains made in April, and are 0.32 per cent below the March 28 low. Foods, off 1.39 per cent since February 14, have dropped 8.4 per cent, while from the 1929 high of 104.8 on July 26 they have lost 12.1 per cent.

Agricultural products dropped 1.72 per cent last week, and so have declined at a rate of 0.80 per cent each week since February 14. Accordingly the purchasing power of farm products dropped 1.65 per cent last week to 107.0, the lowest point since November 15, last.

Prices Have Generally Risen.

Historically speaking, prices of commodities have usually risen. In France, before the war, prices were five or ten times those of a thousand years before. Prices have often risen much more than this, especially after paper money inflation, as in the French Revolution, in the American Revolution, and in the present war, especially in Russia.

Wages Slow to Follow Price Changes.

Salaries and wages rise and fall more slowly than wholesale and retail prices. The purchasing power of wages just before the United States entered the war averaged only two-thirds of what it was ten years earlier, and after the war is still less.

BOND PRICES HOLD, DESPITE OFFERINGS

Movement So Far This Year Reversing Course Shown Through 1929.

TOTAL VALUE DROPPING

The all-bond Irving Fisher index closed the week of May 29 at 101.05, which was 0.1 per cent lower than the previous week's closing. However, despite large new bond issues, the average has shown steadiness for the last three weeks. Thirty per cent of the 70 bonds selected for this index showed no change over the week's closing, 23 per cent gained and 47 per cent lost. Last year during the month of May the all-bond index fell steadily, registering a loss of 1.3 per cent, due to declining prices in first and second grade rails, industrials, United States Government and utilities. The movement over a similar period this year has been just the opposite, but not so marked, as the gain has been only 0.2 per cent. The groups mainly responsible for this upward trend were first and second grade rails and United States Government bonds. The index reached at the close of last week is still 0.57 per cent below the 1930 high of 101.63 on March 21.

The value of all the bonds traded on the New York Stock Exchange continued to drop for the third week. The average daily value traded was 5 per cent less than for the preceding week.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, June 1 (A.P.)—Formation of Midwest Steel Corporation as a wholly owned subsidiary of the National Steel Corporation was announced today. The new company's initial capital of $100,000 will be increased later to $50,000,000 or more. E. T. Weir, chairman of the board of National Steel, fills the same post in Midwest Steel, which is to be National Steel's operating subsidiary in the Chicago area. The company has acquired a 1,000-acre tract on Lake Michigan on which a new plant will be built.

One hundred and five communities will be in the market with new bond issues this week. A $26,245,000 block of State of Maryland 4½s is among the larger issues.

Investments of selected Industries, Inc., appreciated $5,713,188 in market value between January 1 and May 24. The total on the latter date was $61,417,768.

Inflation Is of Various Kinds.

Besides the inflation from great issues of paper money, there is gold inflation, such as the United States experienced in 1915-1917. There is also credit inflation, such as all belligerents experienced.

Social Injustice Costs Billions.

Probably $100,000,000,000 worth of purchasing power, in goods, has actually, though not nominally, changed hands since 1896 through depreciation of the dollar.

IN NO month since the nation-wide decline in industrial activity has Associated System electric or gas output been less than for the same period of last year. Increased demands have resulted in larger output each month over the preceding year.

Territorial diversity through service in 26 States, the Canadian Maritime Provinces and the Philippine Islands is a source of strength and stability. Its effects within the Associated System are amplified by a further diversity as to types of population, sizes of communities and kinds of service.

Advantages of geographical grouping, on the other hand, accrue to the Associated System by virtue of serving nearly one-half the area of New York State, one-third of Pennsylvania and one-fourth of New Jersey. In New England, the Associated System serves one in 20 electric customers and one in 10 gas customers.

MACKS DEFEAT NATS, 9-6, TO GAIN LEAGUE LEAD

COCHET WINS 4-SET MATCH FROM TILDEN; MRS. MOODY VICTOR

'Big Bill' Is Defeated, 3-6, 6-8, 6-3, 6-1, in French Finals.

Helen Jacobs Beaten, 6-2, and 6-1 by U. S. Champion.

By THOMAS P. TOPPING.

AUTEUIL, France, June 1 (A.P.).—Henri Cochet, of France, whose rise into the realm of tennis began at the lowest rung of the ladder, was crowned undisputed king of the court today, while Mrs. Helen Wills Moody reemphasized her right to rule women's tennis.

Big Bill Tilden, fighting a gallant but vain battle against the little Frenchman's racquet wizardry, was beaten by Cochet, 3—6, 8—6, 6—3, 6—1, in the men's singles finals of the French hardcourt championships.

A determined onslaught to snatch from the classic brow of Mrs. Moody the diadem she has worn for several years also ended disastrously. Helen Jacobs, of Berkeley, Calif., lone remaining fighter out of a field of 44 insurgents who rebelled against the feminine dynasty of tennis last Sunday, suffered the same fate as her rebellious sisters, losing in straight sets to Mrs. Moody, 6—2, 6—1.

Society Mobs Former Ball-boy.

By a strange irony of tennis destiny, among the many monocled clubmen and distinguished gentlemen who literally fought for a chance to wring Cochet's hand, hug and even kiss him in his dressing room after his victory, were some of Lyons oarsons, for whom little Henri, a decade and a half ago, had chased balls cattered by their expensive but uneducated racquets.

Such a demonstration attended the victory of Mrs. Moody, the predominant emotion among the 10,000 spectators who witnessed the clash between the two stalwart girls from California seemed to be one of surprise that any one should have the shee audacity to think of challenging her right to the crown.

Cochet started the first set with his usual nonchalance but Tilden also appeared unimpressed by the importance of the match. The American lost his service and Cochet ran into a lead of 3—1. Here Tilden rallied to play such tennis as he never had shown in France and ran out five games for the set.

Cochet Appears Worried.

In the second set, Cochet began to show signs of worry as Tilden led him five games to three. Suddenly, however, he appeared to solve the problem of Tilden's diabolically bouncing strokes from a heavy top spin and ran three games to lead 6—5. Then Tilden carried his service and games were 6 all. Then came the break in the match when a crowd of self-appointed linesmen in the stands howled, booed and whistled at what they judged bad decisions. Tilden halted momentarily, waiting for the noise to abate. He was visibly nervous when he resumed play and Cochet broke through his service, captured the set at 8—6 and squared the match.

Beginning the third set, Tilden changed his entire style of play, starting a fierce driving campaign and playing especially to Cochet's backhand, but the Frenchman's anticipation seemed uncanny; he always seemed to be on top of the ball, and he was returning Tilden's famous cannonball service, in use for the first time in the match, with extreme rapidity, taking the ball on the rise. He broke through Tilden twice to lead, 5—1.

Tilden's last stand occurred here and by a superhuman effort he managed to win two games, to bring the score to 5—3. This spurt left him panting and unable to reach Cochet's slow tantalizing trapshots just over the net and he dropped the set, 6—3.

Frenchman Reaches Peak.

Cochet reached the peak of his play in the fourth set and several times Tilden shook his head despairingly as he watched Henri's lightning, sharp-angled strokes sail just out of his reach. He managed to win only the third game on his own service, Henri running out the last four games with no apparent straining of mind or muscle.

After the match Cochet said: "Tilden played the best game he ever played against me in the last three years, but I am beginning to know his style.

"That was the best I know how to play," Tilden said.

The women's finals lacked the thrills of the Cochet-Tilden match. Mrs. Moody's superiority was too evident. There was only one department of the game in which Miss Jacobs held

Tribe Gains Third Place As Harder Wins Duel

Cleveland, June 1 (A.P.).—Cleveland went into third place in the American League today by taking a 3-to-2 pitchers' battle from Detroit, while New York was losing to Boston. Young Mel Harder and Hudlin bested the former Cleveland star, George Uhle, in the hurling duel.

The Indians scored all their runs in the third inning. Morgan slammed his seventh home run of the season over the right-field wall, and, after Averilli walked and Porter singled, Hodapp and Seeds sent them across the plate on consecutive doubles. Hudlin put down a Tiger rally in the eighth, which fell one run short of tying the score.

Robins Beat Phils; Strengthen Position

Brooklyn, June 1 (A.P.).—The Robins strengthened their hold on first place today by slaughtering the Philadelphia pitchers to win easily by a score of 10 to 2.

Five home runs featured the Brooklyn attack. In both the second and the fourth innings, Frederick and Herman hit home runs in succession. In the seventh, Bissonette's third home run in three days followed Flowers' second triple of the game.

Adolfo Luque pitched his fifth straight victory with this noble support. He has yet to be beaten this season.

ManganBows In Final to Considine

G. U. Netmen Takes City Tourney Title Before 1,000.

Moorhead, Walker Extended to Take Doubles Crown.

By JACK ESPEY.

BOB CONSIDINE, 23-year-old George Washington University tennis captain, won the singles title of the City of Washington tournament yesterday by defeating Tom Mangan, defending champion, in a hard-fought four-set match before 1,000 persons on the Rock Creek courts. The scores were 7—5, 6—4, 5—7, 6—3.

Preceding Considine's conquest, which gave him his second important local tennis title within a year (he won the public parks crown last summer), the team of Phoebe Moorhead and Frances Walker captured the women's doubles championship by defeating Dorothy Kingsbury and Cecyle Raver, 6—4, 11—9.

It was probably the most gratifying victory that Considine has registered during a five-year career that has covered a steady climb to the top flight of Capital netmen, for his opponent was none other than the man who has dominated the game here since Bob first began to swing at the little white sphere. Only on one other occasion had Considine encountered Mangan, and that match, in the Wardman tournament last fall, resulted in a triumph for the veteran.

Winner Awarded McLean Trophy.

Louis J. Doyle, former District champion, presented Considine the Jock McLean trophy for one year's possession and a silver loving cup for permanent possession.

Mangan as usual played his hard-driving game featured by a burning forehand, but this was insufficient yesterday, with Considine making remarkable returns, covering miles of ground and using a mixture of shots that has seldom been witnessed in local tournament competition.

Bob, the ball hawk, tried for everything that came over the net in the first two sets, but his eagerness cost him something in stamina. The third set found him fast losing strength and he had to retreat before Mangan's increasingly steady driving, the result being that Mangan swept the last five games to win the set after being down, 2 to 5.

The ten-minute intermission between the third and fourth sets supplied Considine with some much-needed wind. He came back to the court like the lithe, alert player that he was at the beginning and soon gained the lead. This set, ending the match, consumed less time than any of the others.

In the first set, Cohsidine broke Mangan's service in the fourth game to lead, 3—1, but Mangan retaliated in kind in the fifth. Bob then took the next two. The veteran, showing fire in his eyes and putting extra power into his strokes, won the next three games to deadlock the set. Considine took the eleventh on his own delivery and the twelfth on Mangan's, to win the set.

Mangan Breaks Through.

After splitting the first six games, Mangan broke through in the seventh game of the second set to gain the lead, 4—3. That, however, was as far as he could get, for Considine put on steam and ran out by taking the next three games, putting over a tricky drop shot and a lob for placements in the tenth.

Victory appeared imminent for Considine as he speeded through the first five games of the third set, but his hot pace told on him, and after gaining a 5-2 lead he was unequal to the task of finishing things then and there. Mangan rallied courageously at this point, taking the eighth game without the loss of a point, and gathering in the next four as his younger foe weakened.

Refreshed from the intermission rest, Considine went ahead, 2-1, in the fourth set, scoring the only ace of the match in the third game. Needing but one game to win, Considine was momentarily repulsed in the eighth when Mangan sent home four points in succession.

With the count 30-all in the decisive ninth game, Considine made a remarkable back-hand placement to gain the advantage, but he deuced it by netting on the next point. A

WILSON HITS 2 HOMERS; CUBS WIN

Bush Holds Pirates to 8 Scattered Hits to Win, 16-4.

CHICAGO, June 1 (A.P.).—The Cubs dubbed Pittsburgh here today behind the good pitching of Guy Bush, to go into second place in the National League. The score was 16 to 4.

The heavy Cub artillery, so dangerous last year, opened up, and Meine and Spencer were hit hard.

Hack Wilson was the hitting star of the game with a single, double, and two home runs, his fifteenth and sixteenth of the season.

About 40,000 customers attended to give the Cubs a send-off, for they leave tonight for the East.

Reds Twice Defeat Cardinals, 5-4, 7-1

Cincinnati, June 1 (A.P.).—The Cincinnati Reds won both games of a double-header from the St. Louis Cardinals here today by scores of 5 to 4 and 7 to 1. Harry Heilmann had a perfect day at bat, turning in six hits, two of them home runs. Joe Stripp also hit for the circuit in the second game. Heilmann's four basers were divided in the two games.

The Reds pulled the first game out of the fire with a three-run rally to tie the count in the eighth, but had no trouble in the second, which was cut to seven innings to allow the Cardinals to catch a train. Bennie Frey, who pitched the nightcap for the Reds, was given excellent support, with four double plays thrown in for good measure.

It was the first time in a good many seasons the Reds have won two games from the Cardinals in one day.

Detroit Nats' First Stop In West

Boss and Barret, Not on Trip, Are Due for New Berths.

Liska Hurls Against Tigers Tomorrow; Griffith Scouts.

TWO Washington players did not accompany the team West last night, First Baseman Harley Boss and Outfielder Bill Barrett, being left behind and due to wear other uniform ere long. Boss, who has been slowly recovering from a knee injury, either will be returned to Chattanooga or sent to the Jersey City Skeeters, in either case on 24-hour option, for Manager Walter Johnson insists upon having things fixed this way in order that he will have a capable first sacker to call upon in case of an injury to Capt. Joe Judge.

President Joe Engel, of the Lookouts, has first bid on Boss' services, but is not certain whether or not he can use the youngster. He is considering shifting Ernest (Mule) Shirley, who is going great guns at Chattanooga, to the outfield and, if he decides to do this, will use Boss at first. If he decides to continue Shirley at first, Boss likely will go to Jersey City, this team being willing to take him with the 24-hour option provision in the deal.

Barrett will be let out simply because there appears to be no opportunity for him to break into the Washington line-up. The big fly-chaser was obtained chiefly to fill utility hitting roles, but he is the type of player who needs to be worked regularly to keep at his best; consequently, he has been unable to help any when sent to the tee representing a mate. Waivers already have been obtained on him and he will be sent away within a few days. Just where he will go has not yet been decided, President Clark Griffith having several irons ion the fire and being undecided which one he will yank out.

Nats Open Tomorrow In Detroit.

The Nationals hustled to the Union Station immediately after yesterday's game and are due to arrive in Detroit, where they open their first Western invasion with four games against Bucky Harris' Tigers. Adolph Liska is due to get the pitching assignment tomorrow.

Although beaten his last start out, in the morning game of the Decoration Day bill in Philadelphia, it was wildness rather than inability to fool the batters which caused his downfall and which prevented him from administering the first 1930 defeat to the Mackian southpaw ace, Bob (Lefty) Grove.

It was not so much losing the three games in Philadelphia to the Mackmen which worried Manager Walter Johnson as it was the failure of his three flashy young pitchers, Liska, Irving Hadley and Lloyd Brown. This trio had been performing so brilliantly that the Nat leader had been counting upon a victory almost every time he put any of the three on the hill.

Johnson still has confidence in Liska, but is uncertain as to Hadley and Brown, as the latter also was shaky in the preceding New York series. The two are due to perform in the Detroit series and should they show a return to top form, Johnson will breathe much easier. The work of this pair did much in helping the Nats during their early-season winning streaks and they will be sorely needed if the Nationals are to continue battling around the top of the ladder.

New Pitcher Leaves For West.

Pitcher Harry Childs, whose signing was announced by President Griffith in Philadelphia Saturday, reported to Manager Johnson yesterday and left for Detroit with the team last night.

President Clark Griffith, Nat owner plans to do a little scouting close to home within the next few days and to join the Nationals in the West during the latter half of the trip.

Pitcher Carlos Moore, bought on option from Birmingham, probably will be kept. The final option date has been extended to June 15 and, unless Moore slumps between now and that date, the Nat owner has just about decided to dig out the $17,500 needed to complete the deal. Moore has done fairly well in relief roles and may prove to be of some use later in the season. Of late, he has shown flashes of the speed which made him one of the most talked-of players in the Southern Association late last season.

"Dib" Williams, who played second for the Mackmen yesterday and Saturday, while Max Bishop was out nursing an injured mouth, was a running mate of Jimmy McLeod, Nat rookie shortstop, at Little Rock last season. He and "Mac" made what was rated as the flashiest second-base combination in the Dixie circuit.

Horton Smith Beats Boomer, 6 Up and 5

St. Cloud, France, June 1—(A.P.)—Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., youngster, defeated Aubrey Boomer, English professional, at the St. Cloud Club, 6 and 5, in a 36-hole match today. They were all square at the end of the first 18 holes, but Boomer's game collapsed on the second round.

It was on the St. Cloud course a year ago that Smith turned in his sensational round of 61, one of the lowest scores in golf history.

Giants Beat Braves Twice, 9-4 and 16-3

Boston, June 1. (A.P.).—The Giants took both ends of a double-header from the Braves here today before a crowd of 43,000 fans, one of the largest throngs which ever witnessed major league baseball in this city. The score in the first game was 9 to 4 and in the second 16 to 3. The Giants collected 12 runs in their half of the third inning of the second contest.

Berger of the Braves hit his thirteenth home run of the season in the first game and his fourteenth in the second game.

The second game had to be called at the end of the seventh inning because of the State law prohibiting commercialized sport after 6 p. m. on Sunday.

SCHMELING SATISFIED WITH PRESENT CONDITION

Feels Fresh After Seven Rounds

Stronger Now Than He Was for Battle With Paulino.

German Training to Go 15 Rounds at Top Speed.

By MAX SCHMELING
(As Told to Jimmy Powers).

ENDICOTT N. Y., June 1.—I am in better condition now than I was for my fight with Paulino Uzcudun. That ought to answer my critics who are roasting my trainer, Max Machon, and myself for my methods. Only I know how I feel, and I can honestly say at the end of seven daily rounds of boxing—good, hard boxing—with lively footwork and heavy gloves I am fresh, and not even beginning to blow.

I work three rounds with George Neron, two with Lou Barba, and usually two with Larry Bello or some other sparring partner, and I do not even exert myself, although I rate myself along at top speed.

I am older, better developed physically, throw punches better and am all around farther advanced now than I was when I trained at Lakewood. Remember, that was a fifteen-round fight and I was much stronger at the end of it than my Spanish rival, who was regarded as a good fighter over long distances.

Max Means to Be In Shape.

You know how a runner feels when his lungs are burning with hot lead, when his tongue hangs out, when his heart tries to burst from inside his ribs? In a long race the tape is seemingly miles and miles down the track. You know how an oarsman is in a racing shell when there is still hundreds of feet of water to be crossed and he feels that he can not row another stroke? That is a nightmare and an agony. But imagine how a fighter feels when he comes up for the eighth round, and he is winded and spent, and he can hardly lift up his hands. There are still seven rounds to go and they seem like seven years. Then, supposing he sees his opponent coming on stronger and stronger.

Punches come from a dozen different directions and harder and harder and you realize you are slowing up. That is when a fighter gets frantic. I am going to avoid all this by my training. At the end of seven or eight rounds these days I am fresh and calm and even though I am getting new men each round. Soon you will read where my daily workouts have been lengthened to ten and twelve and then fourteen or fifteen rounds.

Prepares for 15
Fast Rounds.

I am not going to over exert myself but at the same time I am going to accustom myself to fifteen fast rounds. I want to duplicate everything here in camp that will happen in the Yankee Stadium. I want only the regulation one minute rests, the regulation three minute rounds and then I will train myself to go along for fifteen or sixteen fast rounds. I am even going to have arc lights put up over the ring so I can gauge my punches under artificial light. There is a fractional difference between daylight and electric light and day air and night air and I am not going to overlook a single detail. This fight means too much to me. It is the chance of a lifetime and I look upon it as such.

I am sure you will find both Sharkey and me in the ring in good condition with nothing to impair our giving a 100 per cent performance. It will be a battle of two men, the products of modern training methods and the better fighter or boxer will win the most stuff in those champagne-minus any alibis. The man who has colored leather gloves will have one of them raised as victor and I am confident it will be mine.

MACKS TAKE LEAD; NATS BOW, 9-6

Grove Halts Rally in 9th Before Crowd of 25,000.

out, gave the Mackmen their winning margin. Goslin took hitting honors of the game, however, with two triples and as many singles, while three hits each were credited to West, Cronin and Miller.

Game Pitching Duel
At Start.

The affair was an interesting pitching duel between Jones and Mahaffey until the latter suddenly seemed to lose his stuff in the sixth round. Then the Mackmen broke out in a rash of hits, carrying on at Thomas' expense after he had come in as relief, to pile up six runs. Before this flurry, the two teams had battled along on even terms at 2-all.

Washington had broken the ice by molding a tally in the second as a result of Cronin's double and Spencer's single, the Nationals had dropped back in the third, when a walk, Williams and Boley had netted the visitors two markers, while the Nats had knotted the count in the fifth. This run was forced over the plate when, with two out and Jones and West on the paths as a result of a respective single and double, Goslin was intentionally walked and Judge drew an accidental pass.

Then the Barrage Started.

Then the cyclone hit. After Haas and Cramer had singled and Foxx had doubled, opening round 6, Thomas relieved Jones and Miller greeted him with a one-baser. McNair lofted out by Schange rolled to Judge and, on his attempt for a double-play, first to short to first, the throw hit Miller in the back. It was most unfortunate that this play did not go through for, after Mahaffey fanned, Williams cleared the bases with an inside homer to the left of the score-board. All told, six of the ten Mackmen up scored.

To all intents and purposes, the game ended then and there, but the teams followed the usual custom and completed the string. In the homer sixth, singles by Cronin and West, with a walk to Bluege separating them, netted a Washington run, while the world's champs got this back in the next frame from Marberry's offerings, the result of successive singles by Foxx, Miller and McNair. When Goslin opened the lower portion of the seventh with a triple, the residents had visions of a possible rally, but all that developed was the scoring of the Goose on Judge's long sacrifice fly.

After Tate and Boss had failed as pinch hitters starting the eighth, the Nats suddenly rallied and scored two unexpected runs. West and Rice singled and then Goslin came through with his second triple of the game.

The ninth was quite exciting from a Washington standpoint, but it netted nothing more than some thrills, which do not count in the box-score.

IN THE WAKE OF THE GAME

in front in round 5 when he knocked down Myer's hot grounder. The fact that the bases were filled enabled the Athletic third sacker to recover the ball and to dive to third to make a force-play there.

Trying for a double play in the alien sixth, Judge took Schang's roller and almost knocked out Bing Miller on his peg toward second.

Bluege opened the seventh with a great one-handed grab of Cramer's mile-a-minute grasser.

Ending round 8, Myer jumped a mile for Haas' liner. The Nat second sacker just managed to reach the ball, knocking it down and grabbing it before it hit the ground.

Myer came in fast for Cramer's bad-hopping slow one in the ninth, making a good catch and an equally good toss to Judge to barely nab the runner at the doorway.

COCHET IS WINNER OVER BILL TILDEN

Mrs. Moody fairly even and that was in service. Miss Jacobs' service is just about as powerful as Mrs. Moody's, but not quite so accurate. Mrs. Moody led throughout the match and never was threatened. In fact, it appeared that she might have been able to increase her effectiveness had the situation warranted. As it was, she was content to keep the ball in play and wait for Miss Jacobs to make errors which were inevitably forthcoming. Miss Jacobs committed three double faults in the first set and two in the second.

The challenger tried chop strokes in the second set but the champion, playing perfect mechanical tennis, won the first five games, and only when the unruly spectators again booed and hissed a lineman's decision calling one of Miss Jacobs' services bad, which the crowd thought good, did Mrs. Moody relax, allowing Miss Jacob to take the sixth game.

CONSIDINE DEFEATS MANGAN IN FINALS

placement and an out by Mangan then brought him out the winner.

The women's doubles final was closely contested throughout, the second set affording the gallery plenty of thrills. Misses Moorhead and Walker had the match in their grasp four times before finally winning out in the twentieth game.

Today at 4 o'clock, Considine and Mangan will meet Maurice O'Neill and Douglas Love for the doubles championship. The first named pair hold the title from last year. One hour later the mixed doubles final will commence.

Dixie Pigs Easily Defeat Hyattsville in 20-5 Rout

PRINCE GEORGE COUNTY section teams of the Capital City League unlimited race showed a complete reversal of form yesterday and listless one-sided contests greeted fans in three parks, after heated duels were waged a week ago in all sectors.

The Dixie Pigs marred the previously unblemished record of the Hyattsville All-Stars in decisive fashion, hanging a 20 to 5 ticket on the Seat Pleasant invaders, thereby dropping the Hiser clan into a tie with Mt. Rainier for second place as the Mounts completely vanquished their neighbors from Brentwood, 15 to 1.

Berwyn's sluggers hammered Bowie pitchers hard to win a 13 to 6 decision. Giddings did the pitching for the Berwyn crew and was always well fortified behind an wholesome lead.

The ease with which the Dixie Pigs disposed of Hyattsville's best proved an upset. Lefty Stevens started on the mound for the Barbecue band, but his wildness caused his exit in the second round. Blackie Adair was master of the situation thereafter. Tom Mudd, the Hyattsville ace, preceded several mates in hasty exits from the mound.

BURROUGHS A. A. batsmen arose to their might yesterday to hammer out a 12-to-4 decision over the St. Joseph's A. C. Nine, defending champion, in the biggest upset of the day's activities in the District section of the Capital City League unlimited race.

As the Mohawks turned in their third straight victory at the expense of the Woodmen of the World and the Anacostia Eagles romped to a second victory at the expense of the Aztecs, these two winners remain the lone undefeated contenders.

The Army Medico scoréd their first victory of the series at the expense of the Skinker Bros. Eagles on Friendship Field. Columbia Heights regained winning form, although severely frightened by a ninth-inning rally on the part of the Foxall A. C. Nine.

James Schwob's Colt Wins French Stake

Longchamps, France, June 1 (A.P.).

James Schwob's crack 3-year-old, Xandover, ran away from a brilliant field to win the Prix Lupin by three lengths today and thus, by tradition, became the choice to win the French Derby at Chantilly June 15.

Lovelace was second, two and a half lengths ahead of Potiphar, with Janeiro fourth, another three lengths to the bad.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.
Georgetown, 8; Senators, 6.
Sam Wests, 12; Hurchman's, 10.

LATE rallies won decisions for the Sam West and Georgetown teams in the Capital City League midget series. The former came from behind in the last frame to defeat the Hurchman's store Nine, 12 to 10, while Senators succumbed to a seventh-inning Georgetown rally, 8 to 6. The Lionel and King's Palace nines were forced to idle.

With their first defeat apparently upon them, the Sam Wests overcame an eight-run lead in the last three rounds, scoring the deciding tallies by heavy hitting with two hands expired in the eighth and last round. The Hurchman Nine made a bold bid to knot the score again in their half of the final session, but poor base running ended a threatening rally. Rome runs by Batista, Cockrell and Hart practically won the decision for the Westmen.

Rival Pitchers Hit Home Runs.

Trailing, 6 to 4, at the start of the seventh, the Georgetown Nine rallied for four runs and the decision. It was Arrington's pinch triple that drove in the deciding tallies. Home runs by the opposing pitchers, Nau and Foley, each coming with two on base, featured. B. Sisler also hit for the circuit.

Winchester Trackmen Victors by Half Point

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., June 1.—Scoring a half-point margin over their nearest competitors, cindermen of Handley High School, Winchester, nosed out a victory in the intersectional track meet at that institution yesterday afternoon, winning a total of 38 points, while Shenandoah Valley Academy, Winchester, chalked up 37½ to their credit. Competition was spirited in all classes between the two schools, and the meet was the first in which they ever have met each other. Handley and S. V. A. tied in individual scoring. Peechin, academy athlete, and Sirbaugh, Handley star, tied with 13 points each. The 880-yard relay went to S. V. A. runners, with Handley placing second. Handley won a silver cup for scoring the highest number of points. Peechin and Sirbaugh were given silver cups, while the final cup of the meet went to the S. V. A. Relay Team. Charles Town (W. Va.) High School placed third with 25 points, and Bunker Hill (W. Va.) High School fourth with 10½ points.

CIRCLES WIN ANOTHER.

The National Circles gathered nineteen hits yesterday to defeat Seabrook, 18 to 4. Krump and Plumber hit homers for the winners. Joe Haller fanned eighteen of the losing batsmen.

POP WOOD'S scrappy Woodlawn Athletic Club Nine added new interest in the Virginia section championship race of the Capital City League when it handed the previously unbeaten Ballston Athletic Club Nine and 11-to-5 reverse. The team which last week battled Jefferson District Firemen to a 2-to-6 score, came back with new power yesterday and knocked its foe from the top of the team standings.

Ballston's loss enabled the idle Jefferson Firemen to move into the top position, with Woodlawn and Ballston tied for second place.

Cherries Disappoint Large Crowd.

Charley Deuterman's Bauserman Motor Co. Nine had to disappoint a large crowd on Arlington Field when the Cherrydale Nine failed to give battle. The Motormen were awarded a 9-to-0 forfeit verdict, placing that team on even terms to date.

Nineteen hits were collected by the Woodlawns off the delivery of McGolrick, who had turned back all opposition prior. Ryan's home run hit was one of the longest seen in that section in years.

BISHOP OFFICIATES AT ORDINATION RITE

Seven Are Made Deacons at Methodist Conference in Cumberland.

THREE BECOME ELDERS

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., June 1.—Bishop William F. McDowell, of the Washington area, who is presiding over the 146th Baltimore annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in session here, officiated at an ordination service this afternoon.

The deacons ordained were Hartwell F. Chandler, pastor at Relay; J. Elmer Benson, pastor at Urbana, Md.; Lowell S. Ensor, Baltimore, student at Drew University; Francis H. Love, pastor at Shepherdstown, W. Va. William S. Warner, student at Drew; Norman P. Scribner and Robert H. Foster, theological students.

Raymond Hunter Brown, pastor at Jarrettsville, Md.; Sylvester Paul Schilling, Cumberland, student at Boston University, and Edward A. Godsey, pastor at Ellesile, Md., were ordained elders. An overflow assemblage heard Bishop McDowell talk to the young men, telling them that service should be uppermost in their work.

Clarence C. Knapp, Hagerstown, a student, who was passed for the deaconship, did not have the order conferred today, but the conference may tomorrow vote that he be ordained. He was absent, having gone to bring his mother here, and did not advise of his absence.

Bishop McDowell preached in the morning on Job, covering deeper problems of human living. Mrs. Leroy G. Messersmith was soloist. This service preceded the conference love feast, which was conducted by the Rev. Charles W. Baldwin, of Baltimore, 91 years old. Last night the anniversary of the board of home missions was observed with an address on "Pioneer Portraitures and Current Contacts," by Dr. E. D. Kohlestedt, Philadelphia, corresponding secretary of the board of home missions and church extension.

He declared that if the various home mission boards of America were to discontinue present missionary activities, a startling proportion of Christian churches and social service enterprises in congested city centers would automatically close their doors. The board which Dr. Kohlstedt represents, supports in whole or in part, 4,228 missionary pastors, mission superintendents and special workers all carefully trained.

The conference is expected to conclude its work tomorrow morning, when the reports of the board of stewards, the Rev. James L. Clain, pastor of Union Church, Washington, chairman, and the report of the committee on courtesy will be made. It is believed likely that the Rev. Dr. Edward T. Mowbray, of Hagerstown, whose six-year term as superintendent of Frederick district, has expired, will be assigned to a church in Washington. It is expected the appointments will be read at the close of tomorrow morning's session.

Michael A. Doran, Police Chief, Dies

Head of Winchester Force Succumbs at Age of 63 Years.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., June 1.—Michael A. Doran, 63, chief of the Winchester Police Department 20 years and a member of the force 25 years, died late today. He had been ill for several years, but continued in discharge of his duties regularly until two days ago.

A native of Baltimore, the son of an Irish father and a German mother, he had lived here since a lad of 13, and was perhaps one of the most popular officials ever connected with the municipal government. He was employed by the United States Express Co. before being elected by the city council to the police force under the late Chief John R. Mesmer. He succeeded Stewart A. Seabright as chief officer twenty years ago.

He was a member of the Church of the Sacred Heart, the Holy Name Society, a charter member of Winchester Lodge of Elks, a member of the Woodmen of the World, Friendship Fire Company and of the National Association of Police Chiefs. Surviving are a widow, formerly Miss Katherine Dunn; one son, William E. Doran, here, and two sisters, Mrs. J. Ralph Grigsby, Clarke County, Va., and Mrs. W. J. Haskel, Baltimore.

Sweet Briar Class Hears Dr. Stokes

Canon of Cathedral Urges Belief in God and in Humanity.

Sweet Briar, Va., June 1 (AP.P.).—Faith in God and humanity was stressed as a fundamental for success in an address before the graduating class of Sweet Briar College here today by Dr. Anson Phelps Stokes, canon of Washington Cathedral.

No life can be lived at its highest level, said Dr. Stokes, without a belief in a supreme and benevolent power working for right. Faith in humanity is equally essential, he said, a belief in man's potential capacity to respond to the highest educational and environmental influences. Jesus Christ, Dr. Stokes declared, believed in God, in himself, in people and in the coming of the Kingdom of God.

Closing his address, the speaker told the graduates they were living in a thrilling period of history, and that with faith and education they could counteract the destructive influences of bolshevism on one hand and reaction on the other. He touched briefly on the broadening field of women's work, declaring, however, that her place in the home is as essential as ever.

Virginia Forest Fire Laid to Illicit Still

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., June 1.—A moonshine still was blamed by Forest Ranger John Crisman for a small forest fire in the Massanutten Mountains near Mount Jackson, Shenandoah County, last night. There was every indication, according to Crisman, that the fire originated at the site of the illicit distillery at the edge of the burned area.

The exceptional dry weather has converted the mountain underbrush into easily ignited tinder. Although there was little wind the flames swept over 100 acres before the forestry force got them under control.

Dr. Reisner Preaches Baccalaureate Sermon

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., June 1—Dr. Christian F. Reisner, pastor of Broadway Temple, New York City, delivered the baccalaureate sermon today at Randolph-Macon Woman's college, where a large class is to graduate Tuesday. Dr. Reisner's subject was: "All Things Are Yours."

TOBACCO HARD HIT BY BAD WEATHER

Plants Killed Equal Expanded Acreage Arranged for This Year.

CORN PLANTING FAVORED

Weather conditions in the tobacco crop have been such as to kill plants equivalent to expanded acreage planted this year, amounting to between 15 and 20 per cent. Setting out of plants proceeded and was about complete at the end of last week in Virginia. More rain is needed for hand setting in Kentucky.

Field work was favored by last week's weather in the corn belt, planting forging ahead of normal in Iowa, but coolness and recent wet weather causing complaint. Germination and growth continue slow in northern areas.

Low night temperatures were balanced by light rainfall, where it had previously been excessive, in the cotton belt last week. Large areas in Texas are still too wet, however, and fields are becoming grassy. The crop is slow west of the Mississippi. The opposite conditions prevailed in Eastern sections, only local showers being enjoyed. Chopping goes forward, but warmer weather and more moisture are needed.

Spring wheat is well rooted and in good color. Winter wheat is headed in Oklahoma, and ripening toward the South, with conditions much improved in Kansas and generally good throughout the belt. Irregularity is only notable in the Ohio Valley.

Bridgewater Hall Dedication Is Held

Address by Representative Beedy in Charles Knox Cole Memorial Rite.

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., June 1.—If America is to succeed with its experiment to prove that "the many can govern themselves," the average individual must be able to select fit persons for high places and there must be trained men and women able and ready to meet the responsibilities of leadership, Representative Carroll L. Beedy, of Maine, asserted today at exercises dedicating Charles Knox Cole Memorial Hall at Bridgewater College, the principal event of the Church of the Brethern Institution's semicentennial celebration.

"There are two essential rights of which every educated man and woman in particular should never lose sight," he added. "They are the right to the broadest possible measure of individual fredom and the fullest measure of individual justice. When wealth in general is procured in disregard of the rights of others, individual freedom and justice are destroyed."

Miss Virginia Garber Cole, the donor of the auditorium in honor of her father, a distinguished surgeon of New York City, presented the building to the college, and Mrs. Lula E. Uim, of Montana, an elder sister of Dr. Cole, unveiled the bust of Dr. Cole.

THE NEW WEEK'S FILMS

PALACE

"YOUNG MAN OF MANHATTAN." Paramount's picturization of the novel by Katharine Brush, cofeaturing Claudette Colbert and Norman Foster, supported by Charles Ruggles, Ginger Rogers and Leslie Austin. Directed by L. Monta Bell. Reviewed Saturday night.

By NELSON B. BELL.

On the Saturday night before the Monday on which he began production of this picture, Monta Bell told me of his enthusiasm for the Katharine Brush story. That enthusiasm is reflected in the picture, which, it seems to me, affords a wholly enjoyable bit of breezy, diversified and sophisticated entertainment.

With a plot that is perhaps no more vigorously dramatic than it should be, and an almost total absence of big sets and extravagant "picture values," "Young Man of Manhattan" sets forth the marital complexities of a pair of young newspaper writers, whose happiness is temporarily marred by the alcoholic laziness of the husband and the deserved success of the wife, in a manner that is at once amusing, natural and easily adjustable to one's credability.

That a picture should give this impression is no more to be attributed to the skill Monta Bell has displayed in lacing his narrative together by a quick succession of speedy highlights, concerning themselves only with essential action, than to the conspicuous capability of a cast that leaves precious little to be desired in the authentic depiction of their roles. Claudette Colbert, as the movie columnist who steps ahead of her sports-writing husband, is apparently not alien to the type she assumes, and neither is Norman Foster—her husband in real life as well as in the play—although I would not swear that either is really writing anything while pecking away at that typewriter.

The Shorty Ross of Charles Ruggles is another of his inspired inebriates who offers the novelty of occasionally sobering up and proving the point known to everybody in the game that newspaper fellows are right guys. Ginger Rogers, in the role of the flapper washout, proves for the first time to these hazy bifocals that she has a legitimate place before the cameras and microphones. She clicks here. The roster of important principals is completed by Leslie Austin, in the role of publisher who serves as Toby McLean's major worry, and H. Dudley Hawley, currently prevalent and popular in another theater, who appears momentarily as a doctor who both looks and acts the part.

Without any attempt at spectacular effect, and devoid of any chorus of line girls, the stage revue presents Jack Sidney, a hard-working master of ceremonies who sings, and his "Frolickers of 1930," whose identities—if it means a band—were lost among the regular Palace Syncopators. Mr. Sidney introduced a succession of acts that went over with the customers in a very large way. These included Marie and Antoinette, dancers; Erner and Fisher, eccentric steppers; Peggy English, singer; La Salice brothers, burlesque adagio dancers, and Freddy Byron, dancer. Of these, I should say that Marie and Antoinette and Peggy English might have had a shade the best of it.

The bill is augmented by a trick overture comprised—if I have my ears on straight—of special arrangements of "Anchors Aweigh" and "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep," and the Hearst Metrotone News in which Senator Hiram Johnson shakes his fist at the arms treaty and Gus Sonnenburg butts another opponent into Bye-bye Land!

EARLE

"SWEETHEARTS AND WIVES." First National Vitaphone picture adapted from "Other Men's Wives" by Walter Hackett, starring Billie Dove, supported by Clive Brook, Sidney Blackmer and Leila Hyams. Directed by Clarence Badger. Reviewed Saturday night by Mary Porter Russell.

The title of this lively and irresponsible farce is no more apropos than might be "Diamonds and Murders," each designation stressing one aspect of the picture to the exclusion of the other. It is a mystery comedy, with romantic tendencies, and, though one is moved to no excitement over who committed the murder or who gets the diamonds or the girl, the situations in themselves are amusing, and they are interpreted in excellent fashion by a cast that would do any film honor.

Imagine, if you would know the setting, a deserted inn near Le Tourquet, France. Now fill it with a flirtatious young married woman on an escapade with a man not her husband, two mysterious pseudo keepers of the inn and an equally mysterious maid, a valet in the process of being murdered, a facetious English divorce detective, a French inspector of police, two angry and suspicious husbands and a diamond necklace which every one craves. You can see for yourself, from the motley assemblage, that the complications would develop in quick order.

Clive Brook, as the detective, is priceless. His richly humorous performance embodies an exaggeration of every mannerism he has ever exhibited in more serious assignments, and the result is cleverly and genially satirical. Much of the footage is devoted to a battle of wits between him and the French maid, nee Lady Patricia, played by Billie Dove, who is as surpassingly beautiful as ever, but far from convincing as a brilliant adversary.

Sidney Blackmer distinguishes himself as the harassed companion of another's wife, a role in which Leila Hyams displays, for the first time, her talents as a sprightly comedienne. Albert Gran appears briefly as the police inspector.

The entire action of the piece takes place in the inn—much of it in one room—but with Mr. Brook and the others bidding for laughs and getting them, it doesn't make much difference that stage limitations of four walls are imposed.

Will Osborne and his band of radio fame made their personal appearance Saturday night to the applause of what appeared to be a house full of rabid fans. Unquestionably, the boys are good, and they played a generous program of selections, with vocal interpolations, including "Perhaps," "A Man from the South," and "Beside an Open Fireplace," and coming to a triumphant close with the University of Main "Stein Song." Mr. Osborne turned out to be a young man as dignified in manner as his softly crooning voice is sentimental in song. Here's betting that they don't kiss him as they do Rudy Vallee—not if he can help it!

Two notably poor short comedies, "The Fight" and "Christmas Knight," are shown, and the silent news is unreeled to orchestral accompaniment.

METROPOLITAN

"COURAGE." Warner Bros. screen adaptation of the stage play of the same name by Tom Barry, featuring Belle Bennett, supported by Leon Janney, Marion Nixon and Blanche Frederici. Directed by Archie Mayo. Reviewed Saturday afternoon.

To the feminine members of its audiences I imagine this picture will come as a source of tremendous interest and a comforting sense of complacency. It deals with problems—and their solution—that are primarily those of mothers of large families, rendered more acute by lack of means and a sorely stretched credit and complicated with the astonishing viewpoint of the adolescents among the children. Any widowed mother who can successfully overcome such handicaps as these, plus the bitter antagonism of an acrid and vengeful sister-in-law, must have courage, although as I contemplated her reactions to the persistent perplexities that assailed her, it seemed to me that Mary Colbrook's most conspicuous endowment was a colossal incompetence.

Never having been a mother, perhaps I am wrong. Such mothers as I have observed, however, have not been content to let their children dictate who shall rule the house or decide the degree of their moral turpitude in seeking loans from the village banker with a considerable reputation as a roue. In its surrender to the bizarre mental processes of a ridiculously overdrawn oldest daughter and a comparably asinine oldest son, "Courage" strikes me as being less courageous than merely grotesque.

As a matter of fact, it is not an easy matter to decide whether the mother, as portrayed by Belle Bennett, is rightfully the stellar figure in the drama or merely a partially dominant character who must concede that greater honor to her youngest son, Billy Colbrook. Billy suffers under none of the stigma of illegitimacy that was attributed to the part in Mr. Barry's original stage play, the Code of Ethics having made him the spiritual son of the man his mother loved and should have married but the physical child of the father of the other six of her offspring.

The film version is completely dominated by the characters of mother and youngest son, with Miss Bennett doing as well as the inconsistencies of her part will permit in the etching of a believable likeness of maternal anxiety, and Leon Janney quite running away with all of the scenes in which he appears. Here is a youngster who is as engaging as any one of his years the cameras ever have brought us.

I doubt if there was ever a daughter who would impute to her mother the motives to which Muriel Colbrook gives full voice in the episode in the banker's office, but, if there were, she would probably be about as Marian Nixon visualizes her. In the role of the banker Richard Tucker does a brief but highly effective bit, and Blanche Frederici is icily repellant as the sister of the particular Mr. Colbrook with whom Mrs. Colbrook never was in love. Carter De Haven, jr., is cast as the eldest son, who should have had a father to slap him down!

Two Vitaphone Varieties supplement the major feature—"System," a travesty on big business, and "The Love Boat," in which Herman Timberk and Barbara Blair are the stars in much the same sort of song, dance and foolishness as they recently presented in the flesh on a local stage. The Universal News, with Graham McNamee as stentor, completes the bill.

RKO-KEITH

"JOURNEY'S END." Tiffany production, from the play by R. C. Sherriff. Cast headed by Colin Clive. Reviewed (second week) by C. Ransom.

Far and away the most truly living and moving glimpse of war that the screen has given us, the film version of "Journey's End" has well earned an extension of its stay in Washington. If not the greatest, it is unquestionably one of the finest achievements of the talking screen. Even those who find war pictures difficult to endure will do well to steel their nerves for this one.

There is the same kind of argument, or propaganda, in such a picture that there is in every episode of life, the kind that the looker-on must draw from it for himself, and according to his lights. The intimate reactions of a little group of English officers to the life of the front-line trenches are set before us simply, vividly, and with keen insight. If there is anyone who has needed information on the pity and horror of warfare, he will find it here. It is not likely to change the view of any spectator on whether or when these agonies may be abated.

The central figure of the piece is Captain Stanhope, wonderfully played in this version by Colin Clive, who originated the part on the stage in London. If it is possible through this film to gain some imaginative contact with such an officer's feelings, to see how he has succeeded in remaining on the whole sane and human after leading a company through three years of horror, though strained to the limits of endurance and compelled to resort to the perilous stimulation of whisky, we may arrive at some understanding of what is actually meant by the "glory" of war.

Ian Maclaren as Lieutenant Osborne, the older officer who maintains his poise before battle by reading "Alice in Wonderland"; David Manners as young Raleigh; Anthony Bushell as the "rotter," and Billy Bevan as the cheerful ex-ranker, Trotter, all fit perfectly into the picture. We see and study them intimately in the film in a way that we could not in the play, unless seated well to the front of the theater. Also we can hear every word that is said, and we are shown much that the stage can only intimate.

FOX

"THE ARIZONA KID." Fox presentation of a story by Ralph Block, adapted for the screen by the author. Featuring Warner Baxter, supported by Mona Maris and Carol Lombard. Directed by Alfred Santell. Reviewed Saturday night by W. A. Whitney.

The great out-of-doors of the Southwest comes again to the fore with Warner Baxter continuing the adventures so admirably commenced in "In Old Arizona." Whether the present picture can be termed a sequel to the adventures of the Cisco Kid can not be stated with certainty, yet in motif, as well as in several aspects of the story and setting, it is, even though the title role is not so characterized.

Essentially, "The Arizona Kid" is not greatly different from the earlier offering. The entire production is built around another Baxter impersonation embodying the adventures of an alleged cattle rustler. Contrary to the usual procedure, Chico is not pictured as a criminal, but rather as a man with a very definite idea of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness which does not seem to be involved with any so-called major infraction of pioneer law. Mr. Baxter in the title role does a better job than in the earlier production; more convincing because he is better able to arouse and maintain the sympathy of the audience.

Mona Maris, as the Mexican lass who is in love with Chico, and Carol Lombard, as the Eastern girl of less sincere affections, are entirely adequate in their small, though necessary, roles.

For the most part the picture is filmed in the out-of-doors with backgrounds of town and country true to the period of a half-century ago. The dialogue and sound effects are well handled, although the latter add little to the effectiveness of the action. The picture has a tendency to drag in spots by reason of the interpolation of a song or two by Mr. Baxter and the incessant wrangling of Senora Jiminez and Senorita Maris.

Panchon and Marco, for their idea of the week, delve into the land of make-believe and come out with "Let's Pretend." Jimmy Hadres, a clever young Russian dancer; George Green, whose Negro feet are made all the more agile by roller skates; songs by Rita Lane; acrobatic dances by Tilyou and Rogers, and Florence Forman's high kicks have prominent parts on the diversified program.

Alfred Latell, the human "dog," assisted by Sylvan Dell, has the ace spot and Bobby Gilbert is produced out of the orchestra and all but stops the show with his "talking" violin and banter with the orchestra leader.

For their part of the program, the orchestra, under the direction of Leon Brusiloff, plays a rousing medley of modern masterpieces.

COLUMBIA

"CAUGHT SHORT." A Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer presentation suggested by a story by Eddie Cantor, adapted for the screen by Willard Mack and Robert Hopkins, featuring Marie Dressler and Polly Moran, supported by Anita Page and Charles Morton. Directed by Charles F. Reisner. Reviewed Saturday afternoon (second week) by W. A. Whitney.

If you have not yet gotten over the effects of the late Wall Street crash and you are still depressed over the diminution of paper profits, hie yourself to the Columbia and see how Marie Dressler and Polly Moran weathered the storm. There is, however, a limit to the number of boarding houses that the city will stand, but first come, first served!

Marie Dressler and Polly Moran, cofeatured for the second week, are joined in what is perhaps their most excruciatingly funny piece. Whether they fight so that they may have the pleasure of making up, or whether it is the other way around, does not matter. The main point is that they scrap—and how!

Supporting this famous pair of comedienes are Anita Page and Charles Morton, the former being Polly's daughter and the latter Marie's son. They furnish the love interest which manages to hit snag after snag. But it works out all right in the end.

Although the story is very thin—almost nothing at all—it is enough on which to hang the comical antics of the screen's leading feminine funsters. And their performances are their best.

Supporting the screen feature is "Hungarian Rhapsody," a United Artists featurette based upon the immortal melodies of Liszt. Benny Rubin is featured in an all-color musical comedy, "The General" and a release of the Hearst Metrotone News completes the screen bill.

The orchestra, for an overture, plays
